MEN THAT take out life insurance, seriously, unselfishly, not for themselves, but to protect their widows and children after death, will be glad that government authority now limits reckless borrowing on insurance policies.

In time of foolish hysteria men borrow on their insurance policies to the limit, destroying the real purpose of insurance, which is to protect those that depend on the insured, should anything happen to him.

THE INSURANCE Commissioner of Massachusetts, connected with no insurance company, and responsible for wise insurance methods, in his last report, emphasizes "the need of a protective statute" (against reckless borrowing on policies) and predicts that "if it is not enacted, the day will come when policy holders will lament the fact that a check was not provided."

IN TOO MANY cases heads of families borrow to the limit on their policies, and if they die that which was supposed to protect the family, becomes merely a piece of paper with most of its value gone.

Borrowing, such as has occurred recently, had wise regulations not checked it, would compel the most powerful companies to sacrifice choicest securities, the backbone of their investments, to meet the "run," the demand for loans by policy holders, often frightened into foolish waste or reinvestment of money that should have been left safely locked up in their insurance policies.

Be glad if you are insured in a company that discourages borrowing that jeopardizes a sacred investment.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, still forbidding the sun to set on any idle day, plans to put an end to our ancient "hit or miss" systems in industry and employment. He requests Miss Frances Perkins, able Secretary of Labor, and Mr. Roper, Secretary of Commerce, to arrange two committees, one to control production, the other hours and wages.

This will not suit him who says: "I want to attend to my business in my own way," "rounding out," expanding indefinitely and disastrously. But it will suit the country, if it can be done successfully.

PRICES ARE going up, even for farmers. Four weeks ago this writer bought first-class alfalfa hay, delivered to a horse farm in New Jersey, for $21 a ton. Exactly the same alfalfa, ordered for the same delivery yesterday, cost $25.40.

The writer, on his own alfalfa ranch in California, by the way, is selling the highest grade of alfalfa for $12 a ton and less. Also, oats are up, and wheat. "Light in the darkness, sailor, day is at hand," as Moody and Sankey sang it.

MRS. ETHEL FRISCH, blind for five years, recovers her sight and tells friends:

If those who complain so bitterly because prosperity has temporarily flown out of the window, could be blind for a while and regain their sight, there would be little complaining in the world.

IF THE late Dr. Wood, John Bogart, and "Boss" Clark, great news men of another day, could come back, they would wonder at this day's news-gathering methods. Yesterday Mr. Lunn, who runs circulation, and Karpf, responsible for news, heard a roaring over the Hearst Building on the edge of the East River near New York's Brooklyn Bridge. Lunn said:

"There goes young W. R. Hearst's amphibian."

Karpf said:

"Yes, they have just reported more parts of the Akron found at sea and the plane is going out to get photographs."

Such efficiency was unknown in the old days, but old methods seem more interesting to old newspaper men. They mourn the days when it took six hours to go from City Hall to the Bronx, and back, with no telephone or "rewrite man."

INCOME TAX payers will rejoice to hear that innocent little 3.2 beer is expected to pay to Uncle Sam more than the $125,000,000 annually estimated by Secretary Ogden L. Mills.

And musicians will be delighted to learn that, in Milwaukee, mild beer is driving out the barbarian "hot-cha-hot-mama" music that came in with "bathtub gin, bootleg whisky and needled beer." Real music is offered in Milwaukee's beer and palm gardens. It may spread and crowd out gin and jazz.

NESBIT HEIRS WIN SUIT FOR FUND

Court Holds Insurance Trust Valid, Awards Creditors $200,000

In a precedent-setting opinion, Judge James H. Gray, in Common Pleas Court, ruled today that three-fourths of an insurance trust fund left by the late Harrison Nesbit, former president of the closed Bank of Pittsburgh N. A., was to go to his widow and three children.

Validity of the insurance trust, amounting to $750,000, was attacked by 12 banks of Pittsburgh and elsewhere on the ground that Nesbit was insolvent when he set up the fund and that he did so with intent to defraud his creditors.

It was said to be the first instance of an insurance trust being assailed in the courts, and the result of the legal battle was being watched all over the country.

$550,000 TO HEIRS

Judge Gray, in his 101-page opinion, decreed that Nesbit's widow and children were to receive $550,000 of the insurance trust and that $200,000 was to be paid to the Ohio National Bank of Columbus for distribution among all of Nesbit's creditors.

In return the Ohio bank is directed to return to the trustees of the insurance trust, stocks which Nesbit had posted as collateral for a $200,000 loan. These securities have an estimated value of $100,000.

Two months before Nesbit was killed in an automobile accident, October 31, 1931, he had directed the trustees to pay off the loan from the Ohio bank with insurance funds, available after his death.

INVALIDATION CLAIMED

This control which Nesbit sought to wield over the insurance trust after his death was held by the creditor banks to invalidate the trust. This feature likely will play a part in appeals expected to be taken by both sides.

Attorney H. Fred Mercer, representing the widow and her children, said he would appeal to the Woman Sentenced To Die for Slaying

ALBANY, N. Y., April 19.—(INS.)—The Sing Sing death house was given another woman inmate today when County Judge Earl H. Gallup sentenced Mrs. Anna Antonio, 28, mother of three children, to die in the electric chair the week of May 29 for the murder of her husband, Salvatore Antonio.

Judge Gallup also sentenced to death Vincent Saetta and Sam Faraci, alleged to have been hired by the woman to slay her husband so she might collect his life insurance.

Downtown Firemen Quell Cafe Blaze

Downtown firemen early today extinguished a blaze that started in the roof of the Italian Restaurant, 728 Fifth avenue. A pedestrian saw smoke pouring from the front window and sounded an alarm.

Battalion Chief Daniel Jones said the cause was undetermined and estimated damage at $100. The place was closed at the time.

Life Threatened

MISS FRANCES PERKINS

GUARD AMUSES MISS PERKINS

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—(AP.)—Miss Frances Perkins, United States Secretary of Labor, was guarded by police last night after a letter threatening her life was received here.

Unaware that a scrawled death threat against her had been received at the local office of the Department of Labor, Miss Perkins addressed the annual "friendship" dinner of the Temple University Women's Club.

She said later she was "amused" rather than alarmed at the cordons of police surrounding the building and maintaining guard inside.

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, and Mrs. Pearl Buck, missionary-authoress, were other speakers.

Kaiser's Grandson Reported Engaged

BONN, Germany, April 19.—(INS.)—Reports of an engagement between Prince Wilhelm of Prussia, eldest son of the former German Crown Prince, and Miss Dorothea von Salviati, member of a former German noble family, were current today.

Prince Wilhelm has been frequently mentioned as a possible candidate for the German throne in the event of a monarchical restoration. His is 26.

BRITAIN BANS GOODS OF SOVIET

Embargo to Be Lifted If Engineers Are Spared Prison

LONDON, April 19. — (AP.)—Great Britain clamped down an 80 per cent embargo against Soviet goods today, but a few hours after the drastic action had been taken it was authoritatively said that it might be withdrawn if the Russian authorities commuted the prison sentences of two British engineers convicted of sabotage.

Moscow dispatches indicated that the sentences of the two engineers—L. C. Thornton and William L. MacDonald—might be changed to banishment from Russia. Banishment was the court's verdict in the case of three other British engineers who were found guilty.

The British government has contended that its prime concern was the safety of its subjects in Russia.

On the basis of current trade figures the embargo, which becomes effective April 26, will bar imports aggregating £9,600,000 (currently $33,600,000) annually.

The proclamation was signed by King George at Windsor Castle and was published in the London Gazette.

It prevents all importations of Soviet butter, wheat, barley, oats, and maize in grain; poultry and game; raw cotton; petroleum oils; wood and timber, hewn, sawn, planed or dressed; and articles manufactured wholly or partly of wood and timber.

Commutation Asked For 2 Engineers

MOSCOW, April 19.—(AP.)—The Central Executive Committee of Soviet Russia was petitioned today to commute to exile for life the prison sentences imposed early this morning on L. C. Thornton and William L. MacDonald, British engineers, who were convicted of espionage, sabotage and bribery.

Meanwhile the three Britishers ordered banished were making preparations for the trip from Moscow.

Cushny was busily packing his effects in his apartment this morning, while the little Welshman, Albert W. Gregory, who had been acquitted, helped him.

Monkhouse spent most of the day in the Metropolitan-Vickers office in the Electro-Import building winding up his affairs. Nordwall chased frantically about the city hunting for a photographer to take all their pictures, which are necessary for presentation to the passport bureau with their application for visas.

It was revealed also that Nordwall was trying to obtain permission from the Soviet government for his Russian wife to acompany him to London. Mrs. Nordwall is expecting a child in four months.

It was announced that none of the British diplomatic representatives here would attend a reception being given tonight by Maxim Litvinoff, commissar for foreign affairs, and wife on instructions from London.

Schenley Greens Opening Delayed

Because of continuous rains the Schenley Park golf course will not open Saturday morning as scheduled, Public Works Director E. G. Lang announced today. Play would damage the soggy greens, he asserted.

LINDY AND ANNE FLYING AGAIN

BULLETIN.

Instead of coming to Pittsburgh, Col. Charles Lindbergh and his wife took a southerly course and landed at the Baltimore (Md.) Airport, according to a message received at the Allegheny County Airport. He planned to spend the night in Baltimore, his local representatives announced.

Associated Press.

Despite adverse weather conditions the Lindberghs took off today on their first major flight since their journey to the Orient before the death of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, and the kidnaping and death of the Lindbergh's first child.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Anne Morrow Lindbergh left Newark Airport in a red high-winged Lockheed-Vega plane of the cabin type belonging to the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, to which the Colonel is technical advisor.

The trip is designed for both business and pleasure. Col. Lindbergh is to make an inspection of the flying facilities of the T. W. A.

They arrived at Central Airport, Camden, N. J., at 12:40, about 36 minutes after taking off from Newark, and left for Harrisburg at 1:25.

Pawson Is Winner Of Marathon Race

BOSTON, April 19.—(INS.)—Outrunning the best long-distance runners of the United States, Canada, Sweden and Germany, Leslie Pawson, the Pawtucket (R. I.) millworker, this afternoon won the thirty-sixth annual Houkinton-to-Boston Patriot's Day marathon of the Boston Athletic Association, emblematic of world-wide supremacy.

DEFENSE RESTS IN JUDD CASE

FLORENCE, Ariz., April 19.—(AP.)—Winnie Ruth Judd's sanity hearing was halted for four hours today when sudden resting of their case by Mrs. Judd's counsel caught the state unprepared.

County Attorney Will G. Truman and his assistant were granted a recess until afternoon on their plea they were "totally unable" to proceed.

After observing Mrs. Judd for four days at her hearing, Dr. Paul Bowers, Los Angeles psychiatrist, declared today he would testify the condemned woman as sane. He said Mrs. Judd is suffering from "a state of great fear, and is thoroughly frightened." He said Mrs. Judd has "great histrionic ability."

Superior Judge E. L. Green had ordered the jury at the sanity trial locked up for the night. A clash followed when the county attorney asserted it had been requested by defense counsel.

Judge Green admitted it was an error.

STEEL SETS NEW HIGH FOR YEAR

Anti-Deflation Move Engenders Buying Enthusiasm

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—With stocks up $1 to $11 a share, wheat rising more than 4 cents a bushel and other commodities buoyant, bullish sentiment in American markets reached the boiling point today as Washington worked at its "anti-inflation" program.

Trading in the New York Stock Exchange proceeded at a pace that promised a 5,000,000-share day for the first time in many months.

Equally spectacular was the precipitate drop in dollar exchange against foreign monies, reflecting the gold embargo and the inference that the American dollar was to be allowed to find its own level in world markets.

Speculative enthusiasm on the stock exchange ran so high that the quotation machinery was swamped and the ticker at times ran six or seven minutes behind actual business on the floor.

Buyers were particularly eager to acquire metal issues and other commodity shares, several of which whirled up $4, $5 and $6 or more.

United States Steel common surged up nearly $4 to just under $38, a new high for the year, while the preferred jumped $4.25 to above $71. American Smelting gained $6.75 to $27, United States Smelting $8 to $40.50, International Silver $2.50 to $25, Homestake Mining $11 to $198, J. I. Case $4 to $53, Westinghouse $3.62 to $30.75, American Can about $4 to $67.50, Corn Products $4.75 to $64.50, Anaconda Copper $1.75 to $9.75, and American Telephone $2 to $90.

MacDonald to Reach New York on Friday

S. S. BERENGARIA, En Route to New York, April 19.—(AP.)—This vessel is expected to reach quarantine at New York with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at 11 a. m., Friday.

Today the weather was dull and Mr. MacDonald spent the entire morning working on his preparations for his economic conferences in Washington with President Roosevelt.

Arson Charge Jails Two in Homestead

John Furlano and John Fusco, 217 West Eighth avenue, West Homestead, were committed to jail today by Justice of the Peace Walter Terrill on charges of arson. They were accused of having set fire to their two-story brick home last Sunday night.

Museum Curator Trussed in Holdup

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—(AP.)—The Rev. Dr. Leon Legrain, curator of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, was bound and gagged in a public garage today by two holdup men whom he surprised while they were trussing up two Negro attendants.

U. S. TO FREE BILLIONS OF IDLE CASH

Controlled Credit, Managed Currency Among Plans

WASHINGTON, April 19. —(AP.)—President Roosevelt moved today on the international and domestic fronts in a broad campaign to restore American price levels, wages and credit.

He focused first attention on the forthcoming world economic conversations and acted to strengthen his hand in these negotiations.

To attain a position to deal with the foreign powers which have gone onto depreciated standards of currency, he withdrew support of the American dollar in the foreign exchanges.

GOLD STANDARD

He evinced determination to exert efforts toward bringing all nations back onto the gold standard—perhaps at a lower ratio than the existing 40 per cent gold reserve for currency.

By bringing about a restoration of the world monetary situation the President is confident of immeasurably improving the position of American currency and trade.

Attacking the situation from the domestic angle, he watched carefully the meeting of the governors of the 12 Federal Reserve banks here today.

With Secretary Woodin, they are devising methods of using the idle billions of American money.

The President, in preparing for his international parleys, is putting this nation in the same position as all others with a view to finding an agreement for a more stable world basis.

He has in mind a controlled price level, a controlled credit and a managed currency.

There is talk of reducing the

ROOSEVELT ILL, BLAMES 'TALK'

WASHINGTON, April 19. —(AP.)—A slight cold, complicated a bit by a sore throat, today caused President Roosevelt to hold his press conference in the oval room at the White House proper instead of his executive offices.

It was the first time in the memory of veteran reporters that a President had talked on news matters at the executive mansion itself.

It was said that Mr. Roosevelt regarded the cold as something that a little rest and home remedies would clear up. He had not called in a physician, although the naval hospital filled a prescription for his use.

The President, handkerchief in hand, smilingly commented on the cold. He told the newsmen to come as close to the desk at which he sat as they could since "my voice hasn't much carrying capacity this morning."

He answered questions freely, however, and his voice seemed to grow stronger as he talked.

Near the end of the conference, he was asked how the cold began and the chief executive drew a laugh by answering that it was probably from talking too much.

Historic Snuffbox Stolen from Window

NEW YORK, April 19.—(INS.)—A brick wrapped in newspaper was thrown through the glass of the show window of Marcus & Co., Fifth avenue jewelers, early today, and a diamond-studded snuff box once owned by Frederick the Great was stolen.

Break for Liberty Fails Paroled Man

A break for liberty failed for Mitchell Szymbroski, 21, of McCandless avenue today. He fled from the parole office in the court house and was captured at Sixth and Wylie avenues by Deputy Sheriff "Happy" McVey.

HARRISBURG, April 19.

Dear Mr. Editor:

You probably want something in the paper today about regulation and taxation of beer in Pennsylvania.

But if you know what is going on in the Legislature on this subject you are a better man than I, or any Legislator here present. There are rumors of agreements, as there have been for 10 days. But past agreements have not been good even for two editions of our newspaper, and the Capitol is littered with broken beer pacts—and hotel rooms with bottles which contained untaxed but fairly palatable beer.

The Conference Committee of House and Senate met this morning to again consider beer legislation, but members reported they had gotten nowhere, an announcement they said could stand at least until this afternoon, when the committee may meet again.

Senator John J. McClure again brought up the proposal to have county treasurers issue licenses, and the members studied an entirely new bill prepared by Attorney General William A. Schnader.

As the conference reached no agreement the members were somewhat at a loss, as there is no pact for them to break.

Another report is that both houses will be asked to reconsider the Sowers beer bill, which they adopted in a form displeasing to Gov. Pinchot, and place the licensing power in the hands of county treasurers, which will satisfy Mr. Pinchot. Now the bill makes Quarter Sessions Court the licensing agency.

There was supposed to be an agreement Monday to give authority to the treasurers. Indeed, the conference committee, consisting of Senators McClure, Coyne and Baumer, and Representatives Sowers, Steedle and O'Connor ratified that agreement.

But it was broken 10 minutes after the committee had agreed, because Philadelphia members insisted the courts should get the job, something nice for some law-

Congressman 'Socks' Owner of Noisy Radio

WASHINGTON, April 19. —(AP.)—A warrant was sought in Police Court today for the arrest of Representative Shoemaker, of Minnesota, on a charge of assailing a next-door neighbor, who refused to turn off his radio at the request of the Farmer-Laborite.

Theodore Cohen, who lives in an apartment adjoining that occupied by the Representative, told an assistant United States District Attorney that the blow that Shoemaker aimed at his eye was so effective that several stitches were required to close the wound.

Cohen said he was entertaining friends at about 10:15 last night when someone telephoned and threatened to "break their necks" if they did not turn off the radio, and that a few minutes later the Representative appeared and struck him when ordered from the apartment.

Cohen quoted Shoemaker as saying:

"I am the only ex-convict in Congress and I am hardboiled. I'm another Hitler."

U. S. INDUSTRIAL CONTROL IDEA STIRS FIGHT

Ford and Sloan to Be Called for Testimony

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(INS.)—National controversy precipitated overnight by Secretary of Labor Perkins' proposal to expand the Black 30-hour work week into partial government control of industry prompted the House Labor Committee today to hold public hearings on the bill next Monday.

Leading economists, industrialists and labor leaders, including Henry Ford, Alfred P. Sloan, head of General Motors Corporation, and Gerard Swope, chief of the General Electric Company, will be invited to testify.

Representative Connery (Dem.), of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee, said a deluge of telegrams had disclosed widespread difference of opinion over Miss Perkins' suggestion for a federal minimum wage and partial control of industrial production.

Members of Congress have frequently envisioned industry controlled by the government as to production, wages and hours of labor, but expected no such action in the immediate future.

Controlled industry has been debated by business leaders for many months following publication of the plan of President Gerard Swope, of the General Electric Company, to this end.

Under the proposal before the House committee, as suggested by Miss Perkins, she would become a virtual czar of American industry.

She would have power to limit hours of labor drastically in any factory that is preventing "a fair balance of production in the industry involved and is bringing about overproduction or unfair competition in interstate commerce by reason of excessively long periods of operation and thereby causing extraordinary hardship to other plants and enterprises in said industry."

STEEL WORKERS BACK 6-HR. DAY

A resolution indorsing the six-hour day bill was adopted unanimously today by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers at their fifty-eighth annual convention in the Roosevelt Hotel.

According to M. F. Tighe, president of the association, this bill will solve the problem of unemployment in the iron and steel industry. He denied that it is impractical and said several steel companies are now using the plan with success.

Delegates from all sections of the United States are attending the convention. It started Tuesday and will last from eight to 10 days.

WAGNER RELIEF BILL APPROVED

WASHINGTON, April 19. —(AP.)—The House Banking Committee today approved the $500,000,000 Wagner-Lewis bill with its provisions for direct relief grants to the states.

Chairman Steagall said the vote was 15 to 6.

Representative Luce, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican, announced he would file a minority report on the measure in behalf of the members of his party.

The Senate has passed the bill and a House vote soon is due, that chamber being in recess today.

Meanwhile, legislation to speed loans from the Reconstruction Corporation to states and subdivisions for construction purposes—part of the administration program for relieving unemployment—was considered by a Senate committee.

'Allegheny Riverfront Improvement Urged

The Downtown Business Men's Association has voted to ask City Council to proceed first with the portion of the river front improvement along the Allegheny River from Tenth street to the Point.

Walter Rosenbaum, president of the association, will present the request. The wharf plan includes two wide boulevards on columns with parking space below.

40 per cent gold reserve for currency as a basis for a new world standard, but it does not appear now that this will be considered except by common action of all the nations.

The President announced today the cessation of licenses for exports of gold to support the American dollars in foreign exchange. This was a preliminary step toward raising domestic commodity prices.

Many other ideas are in the administration mind. The next move awaits developments from the present steps.

The President apparently has won a respite from the leaders in Congress who have been hammering hard for outright currency inflation.

As the result of conferences last night and today, the congressional captains are withholding proposals in order to give the President a free hand.

Meanwhile, formulation of plans to put part of $2,000,000,000 of new federal bank notes into circulation to aid the business revival and to release $5,000,000,000 in deposits tied up in closed banks was started today at the Treasury.

Governors of the 12 Federal Reserve banks were called into conference behind closed dors by Secretary Woodin to devise means of forcing the money out of the banks into trade channels. They met in the Federal Reserve Board's office.

F. R. MAY END CUBAN TARIFF

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(INS.)—Assured by the Cuban ambassador that the political unrest in Cuba is due to economic conditions, President Roosevelt is considering the granting of a quota system to that republic, permitting the duty-free exportation into this country of between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 tons of sugar annually.

The present tariff duty on Cuban sugar is 2 cents per pound.

Oscar Cintas, Cuban ambassador, informed the President yesterday that the political unrest, resulting in numerous assassinations and bombings in Havana, has been caused by business adversity.

He said Cuba has been hit so badly by the depression that plantation workers are earning only $9 per month. Political factions opposed to the Machado regime, he added, have taken advantage of the distress to stir up trouble among the workers.

U. S. ELECTRIC LINE FOES LOSE

WASHINGTON, April 19. —(AP.)—Administration forces in the House Military Committee today overwhelmed power company opposition to Government construction of electric transmission lines to retain this authority in the Roosevelt Tennessee Valley program.

But language was written into the measure providing that before the Government corporation builds its own lines, it would endeavor to lease, purchase or condemn existing lines of private companies.

Friends of the measure said the ultimate authority to build lines if existing facilities could not be obtained at equitable prices would enable the proposed Tennessee Valley authority to obtain satisfactory terms.

FARM RELIEF BILL PRESSED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Threatening a night session, administration leaders launched a final drive in the Senate today for enactment of the emergency farm relief bill before another adjournment.

Its advocates declared it would increase the revenue of American farmers by $1,000,000,000 a year.

The bill provides that the government could increase prices to farmers by renting surplus acreage, through negotiating agreements between producers and processors to increase prices or by payment of bonuses to farmers under the allotment system for reducing production. The cost would be borne by a processing tax, which in the case of the allotment plan, would equal the difference in the purchasing power of a farm dollar in the period of 1909 to 1914 and the present day.

Bandit Poses as Bank Examiner; Gets $8,000

SYRACUSE, Ind., April 19.—(INS.)—A new wrinkle was introduced in bank robbery in Indiana today, and it netted a lone, daring bandit approximately $8,000 from the $400,000 State Bank of Syracuse, here.

Sol Miller, 60, cashier of the bank, received a telephone call this morning. A strange man's voice boomed into Miller's ear:

"I am a bank examiner from the State Banking Department. My automobile broke down in the country and I am bogged down. Can you come right out and get me?"

Obligingly, Cashier Miller jumped into his automobile and drove out to the presumed examiner's assistance.

The man whipped out a gun when Miller got out of his machine, dragged the banker off the road into a field, tied him to a tree and getting into the cashier's car drove to the bank.

Two assistant cashiers accepted the stranger as the examiner, and let him behind the cashier's cage.

Then the bandit scooped up all the money he could comfortably haul and made his getaway.

HERRON SLATES 50 POLICEMEN FOR PENSIONS

Shelving Veterans to Build Up Vote Machine

Upward of 50 veteran policemen are to be retired in the police shakeup to strengthen the Coyne-Herron machine, it was reported today. Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide said he is studying the list of those to be retired and until this is completed the shakeup is being delayed.

Mayor John S. Herron and McQuaide today attended a police pension fund meeting behind closed doors. Nothing was divulged. McQuaide presided for the first time at a meeting of the trial board.

Herron Blames Publicity For Ills of City

Mayor John S. Herron diagnoses Pittsburgh's political ills as simply a case of too much publicity about the bad things and not enough about the good things of the city.

Speaking at the annual banquet and meeting of the Allegheny County Medical Society last night in Hotel Schenley, the Mayor declared:

"We have thousands who can tell you all about the Monaca Club, but how many can tell you about the Allegheny General Hospital?"

Praising the society for its quiet election, in which Dr. George W. Grier was named president, Herron sallied:

"It's wonderful. You don't hear a word of scandal. Even the League of Women Voters is not called in. And Mr. McGovern can't even find fault with it."

NAZIS TO CURB STUDENT JEWS

BERLIN, April 19.—(AP.)—The Aryan law, which bars nearly all Jews from civil service and degrades them to second class citizenship, is being invoked in all German universities by Chancellor Hitler's cabinet.

Final action was postponed today until Saturday because Hitler is remaining in Berchtesgaden, Bavaria, awaiting the personal report of Capt. Hermann Goering, leading Nazi member of the cabinet, on his visits with Premier Mussolini and the Pope in Rome.

Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Nazi minister of the interior, has drafted a law regulating admittance of Jewish students to universities and other institutes of the Reich according to their ratio of the entire population. Another law will assure Nazi leadership of student organizations.

HIGH SEAS, FOG HALT AKRON SEARCH

Wreckage Located, but No Trace of Bodies Discovered

ABOARD U. S. S. PORTLAND AT SEA, April 19.—(INS.)—Rough seas and fog today postponed diving activities over the scattered hulk of the ill-fated naval airship Akron, which crashed to a watery grave on April 14 with the loss of 73 lives.

While large sections of the dirigible's debris have been recovered in the salvage operations off the New Jersey coast, no trace of any bodies has been discovered to date.

With the elements halting diving work on the wreck, three Naval tugs anchored over the spot where the main part of the foundered airship was believed scattered over the ocean bottom. A special buoy was placed over the point where part of the control car was found and brought to the surface.

DEFENDS AKRON

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP.)—Commander Garland Fulton, a Naval lighter-than-air expert, today told the Court of Inquiry investigating the disaster of the Akron that the ship was twice as strong as the Los Angeles, now out of commission, and three times as strong as the Shenandoah, which fell in Ohio in 1925.

TROOPS GUARD BOMBED LEVEE

GLENDORA, Miss., April 19.—(AP.)—Two companies of Mississippi National Guardsmen moved into Glendora today and took over control of the Tallahatchie River levee system following the dynamiting yesterday of Chute Bridge, a strategic portion of the levee, inundating thousands of acres of rich delta cotton land.

The guard units were ordered to the scene by Acting Adjt. Gen. B. F. McClelland, under instructions from Gov. Sennett Conner, of Mississippi.

Civilian levee guards, routed from their posts late yesterday by a group of 250 men shortly before the blasts, turned patrolling of the levee over to the guardsmen and returned to their homes.

The tense situation which prevailed through the night had eased considerably. The guardsmen moved into the troubled area as a group of dynamiters were preparing another charge designed to widen the crevasse formed by the dozen blasts made yesterday.

F. R. Rail Message Expected This Week

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt expects to have his special message to Congress proposing temporary railroad reorganization ready for submission before the end of this week, he said today.

It previously had been indicated the Executive will ask for appointment of a national coordinator who would have broad powers to eliminate duplication of service and reorganize capital structures.

Mrs. Nesbit and her two daughters, who, with a son, today were winners in a court fight over the late Mr. Nesbit's insurance trust fund when Judge Gray, in a precedent-setting opinion, ruled that three-fourths of the $750,000 fund should go to the little family.

MISS KATHYRN RAY

SUIT OF MAID DISMISSED

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—A $200,000 damage suit brought by Ann Snowden, Negro domestic, of Washington, against Kathryn Ray, former show girl, and Martin (Macoco) Unzue, heir to an Argentine fortune, was dismissed by a Supreme Court jury yesterday.

The servant charged she suffered from a tumor as the result of trying to stop an attack upon Miss Ray by Unzue in Paris in 1929. Miss Ray and Unzue denied there ever had been an altercation between them and their attorney, Hyman Bushel, described the case to the jury as a blackmail attempt.

Supreme Court, in an effort to have the entire $750,000 fund held intact for the beneficiaries, on the ground that Nesbit could not exercise control over the trust fund after his death.

In passing upon the question involved, Judge Gray ruled:

"In Pennsylvania the established public policy favors the protection of a wife and children in the enjoyment of the proceeds of life insurance policies on the life of a husband and father, even though the policies have been taken out and premiums paid when the insured was insolvent."

SOLVENCY ISSUE

The court found that Nesbit was solvent September 11, 1928, and that he was not insolvent until May 5, 1931. The insurance trust was set up as of June 3, 1930.

The court also held that Nesbit in transferring certain assets from his estate to the insurance trust July 30, 1931, was not acting to defraud his creditors.

Nesbit's children as Scott H. Nesbit, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Jerome P. Bowers, Chicago, and Nancy Elizabeth Nesbit, of Warrenton, Va., who was with her father when he was killed.

DICTATOR AIRS ISSUE BEFORE ITALY'S KING

Statement Preceding Washington Parley Held Important

ROME, April 19.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini suggested the payment of international debts with exchanges of goods or services in a speech today at the inaugural meeting of the interparliamentary commercial conference, presided over by King Victor Emanuel.

The meeting was attended by numerous notables, including Capt. Hermann Goering, Nazi minister without portfolio in the cabinet of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, who has been conferring with the Pope and the Italian Premier.

The Premier said:

"A good sign is the recognition that is being reinforced everywhere that it is not possible to pay international debts merely with transfers of money, but that the debts themselves must be paid above all with exchanges of goods or services."

Signor Mussolini, who spoke at the capitol, said that the question was "one of the most complex and delicate, because it embraces problems of an economic and financial nature, not only as regards debtor countries but also creditor countries."

The opinion of Il Duce was regarded as most important here because his pronouncement was made less than a week before the departure of Finance Minister Guido Jung, the Italian delegate to the preliminary world economic conference at Washington.

NEW FRAUD SUIT IN HOMESTEAD

Charges that real estate assessments in Homestead were juggled for political purposes in 1931 were revived today when county investigators filed informations against six Homestead residents before Justice of the Peace Richard Lawry, of West Homestead.

Those named are Burgess John J. Cavanaugh; Supt. of Schools Port Eckles, C. J. McBride, former secretary of the County Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes; William Dee, former sub-assessor and Councilmen Jesse Honse and Martin Delaney.

MOVE TO 'GAG' HOUSE FAILS

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP.) — The House Democratic leadership today quit cold the ambitious plan to clamp down tight rules on the House, surrendering to strong opposing sentiment without a skirmish in the open.

Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, passed the word that they had abandoned the attempt to increase from 145 to 218 the number of petitioners necessary to force a bill out of committee and onto the floor for a vote.

Threat of Chair Ended For Boy; Darrow Wins

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 19.—(AP.) — The last threat of the electric chair had ended today for 18-year-old Russell McWilliams, of Rockford, Ill., who has three times been sentenced to death for murder.

His life was spared yesterday by Gov. Henry Horner, who ordered his imprisonment for 99 years in Joliet Penitentiary.

Executive clemency came three days before McWilliams was to have been electrocuted.

It marked the seventy-sixth birthday anniversary of Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago attorney, who championed the cause of the youth.

The board's recommendation that the sentence be commuted to life imprisonment was partly overruled by the Governor, who fixed the penalty at 99 years. This would make a parole impossible until McWilliams has served 33 years. Under a life sentence a parole could come after 20 years.

MOTHER OF ILL BOY THREATENS 'BROOM' FOR ADVISORS

FIRM IN REFUSAL OF TREATMENT FOR SON

Promises 'Knock in Head' for Hospital Advocates

Mrs. Mary Lesic, Millvale mother, threatened today to chase with a broom anyone who dares to tell her she should return her stricken 3-year-old son to the Children's Hospital.

For almost a week Mrs. Lesic has held at bay the forces of law, medicine, religion and charity that seek to bring about treatment for her boy. She declared:

"If anybody comes around here again telling me to take Billy back to the hospital I'll chase them with a broom. I'll knock them in the head."

So Billy Lesic, according to medical authorities, faces the threat of death that springs from lack of hospital care for tuberculosis of the spine.

DOCTORS' VERDICT

Doctors who examined the boy say:

"Several vertebrae in the spine have already been destroyed by the disease. We don't give him more than four years to live if he is not properly cared for."

The Rev. Albert Zagar, pastor of St. Nicholas' Church, of which the Lesic's are members, said:

"I am going to talk with Mrs. Lesic today. She is a good woman and I hope to persuade her to do whatever is best for the boy."

COURT DELAYS CASE

Seeking to save the child's life and at the same time to refrain from infringing on parental rights, the Juvenile Court has delayed the case a week. They hope that when that time elapses the parents will have sent the boy back to the hospital.

Fishbein Indorses Compulsory Operation

In an interview for the Sun-Telegraph Dr. Morris Fishbein, noted physician and editor, today indorsed the stand taken by the appellate division of the Supreme Court of New York yesterday in upholding the right of Judge George Smith to order an operation performed on 2-year-old Helen Vasco.

He also believed 3-year-old William Lesic, of Millvale, should be in the hospital if he is suffering from tuberculosis of the spine, as doctors agree, in spite of his mother's refusal to submit to the physicians' orders.

Approving the spirit of the bill now before the State Legislature giving juvenile courts power to force medical care upon children, Dr. Fishbein said:

"I have always thought that, inasmuch as the child is not solely the property of its parents but is partly the property of the state through its citizenship, it should receive proper, recognized scientific treatment, especially in cases of contagious diseases."

BABY OPERATION ORDER NEAR

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., April 19.—(INS.)—An immediate operation on the eye of 2-year-old Helen Vasco, whose parents have fought against it, may be ordered, Judge George W. Smyth, of Westchester County Children's Court, indicated today following the unanimous decision of the Appelate division in upholding his previous opinion on the case.

Mrs. John Vasco, mother of the pretty child, has refused to permit an operation on the eye of their daughter although doctors have told them that the malignant tumor, from which Helen is suffering, may cause her death if it is not immediately removed.

She has declared that they would rather see her child dead than disfigured for life through the removal of her eye.

WIFE EXPLAINS AUTO TRIP

She called Attorney A. Devoe P. Miller "Shorty," Mrs. Agnes Sheridan said in cross examination on charges instituted against the pair by the woman's estranged husband, W. M. Sheridan, bank secretary, in Criminal Court. She would admit no further friendliness with the attorney.

Mrs. Sheridan testified her husband had threatened to kill her if she did not drop her divorce suit.

Explaining a scene detailed by the prosecution, she said she had driven with Miller toward her sister's home in Keown Station to get a statement for use in the divorce case, and they stopped at a barbecue, thinking to telephone for police.

Changing their minds they resumed the trip, she said, but Sheridan's car cut ahead of them and she feared to go on. They returned to the barbecue, where a constable and two other men arrested them.

Miller asserted the arrests were a frameup.

RAINY APRIL OUT FOR RECORD

April, by tradition a month of showers, may hang up a new record for rainy days this year.

Rain has fallen on all except four days thus far. On 13 days the rainfall had been of measurable quantity.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman pointed out that the average number of rainy days for the entire month of April is 13.

The total rainfall up to 8 a. m. today was 3.25 inches. The normal for the month is 2.92 inches.

Little Fellows, Made Big, May Become Violent

-By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER-

When world powers disarm it will make big nations out of little nations. Will the little fellows stay peaceful?

Remember the small darkey who was scared of the giant roustabout who wanted to be friends? He asked:

"You're a bad man. Ain't you got a gun on you?"

"Nope. No gun."

"Nope. No knife."

"You mean to say that you ain't got nothin' on you what'll hurt a man?"

"That's what I means. Nothin'."

And with that the little man jumped on the big man and kicked him around a 40-acre lot.

SHAW ENDS TRIP 'IMPRESSED WITH U. S.'

Adds Visit as Whole Was Disappointing; Likes 'Oh, Yeah'

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., April 19.—George Bernard Shaw returned to England at the conclusion of his world tour today, convinced that Americans know less about their own country than the Chinese do about theirs.

With the exception of his stay in California, the 77-year-old dramatist insisted his first visit to the United States was a disappointment. He added:

"But I must confess I was impressed with the United States. The United States also was impressed with me.

"It showered me with amazing hospitality, especially in California. I enjoyed California immensely, and stayed a good time on Mr. William Randolph Hearst's ranch at San Simeon.

"I have always been impressed with Mr. Hearst because he is one of the few men willing to talk the truth. Having met him, I was more than impressed.

"I talked with Charlie Chaplin, Marion Davies and other film stars. It was a nice experience to see these people in the flesh and to renew my old friendship with Chaplin."

Turning to the subject of prohibition, he said:

"I do not think the American back-to-beer policy will make any difference because I found that when prohibition was still in force there was plenty of alcoholic liquor available."

He declared that after visiting 29 countries he thought perhaps the best place in which to live would be heaven.

He insisted he was sorry he made the cruise, asserted that his wife had forced him into it and declared he knew more about the world and its inhabitants before he circled the globe to study them at first hand than he does now. He continued:

"In general, wherever I went I found civilized people unhappy and anxious but uncivilized people happy and carefree."

Mr. Shaw still carried a wreath of flowers which an admirer tried to put about his neck in Honolulu with the result that he injured his leg in escaping. He said:

"My danger was being mobbed to death, which I very nearly was."

Concluding the interview, he remarked:

AMERICAN HIT IN JAP RAID

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, April 19.—An American missionary worker was wounded when a squadron of 12 Japanese planes bombed the town of Miyun today for the second time in 24 hours, it was stated in a Chinese military communique.

The United States legation said it was unaware of the presence of any American at Miyun. An investigation was begun, however, in the belief the victim may have been a Y. M. C. A. worker with Chinese forces.

A similar bombing occurred at Tungchow, where the Japanese missiles endangered the lives of 200 American high school students.

Jimmy Chuan, a Chinese graduate of an American university, who served as a Y. M. C. A. secretary in France during the World War, and is now field director of operations for the Chinese Y. M. C. A., reported Japanese planes had bombed property of the association.

FACTOR AWAITS SON'S RETURN

CHICAGO, April 19.—(INS.)—Police and hoodlums today formed a strange alliance to secure the return of Jerome Factor, 19, kidnaped and held for $50,000 ransom.

And Jerome will be returned to his father, John (Jake the Barber) Factor, within 24 hours, it was reported. No payment has been or will be paid.

Asked about the report, Factor, grinning broadly for the first time since his son was abducted a week ago, replied:

"I have heard the same story you heard. It must be true."

Six recognized Capone gangsters, freed by police after a seizure in a hotel raid, were aiding the law in bringing about Jerome's release.

The receivers were granted a petition in Federal Court today by Judge R. M. Gibson, permitting them to retain the law firm of Lewis, Alder & Laws, of Philadelphia, to represent them in the suit.

The petitioners claim the Iron City fleet was swept from its moorings, entailing direct damage in excess of $75,000.

HOPE OF FINDING LANCASTER IN DESERT FADES

Flier, Career Broken By Murder Charge, Sought Comeback

By JOHN KOBLER
International News Service.

LONDON, April 19.—Victor in many previous battles with the elements and triumphant in a murder trial where his life was at stake, Capt. William N. Lancaster today was feared a victim of the Sahara.

Hope dwindled for the famous British airman, long missing on an attempted flight from London to Cape Town on which he hoped to set a new record and rehabilitate the career shattered when he stood before a jury in Miami, Fla., charged with the murder of Hayden Clarke, a writer and his close friend.

Lancaster was acquitted, but he found it hard to find a niche for himself in an England changed during his long sojourn in the United States.

SPURRED BY AVIATRIX

Encouraged by Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, in whose home Clarke met his death, Capt. Lancaster took off on the hazardous Cape Town flight. His plan was to break the record established recently by Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison.

Lancaster was last reported when he headed out across the Sahara for Gao, Nigeria, on the most difficult leg of the flight. It was on this lap that Lady Mary Bailey was forced down on a similar attempt some months ago.

Sandstorms forced a halt in the concerted search for Lancaster launched by the French colonial air force, which found Lady Bailey after she had spent four days and nights alone with the shifting sands and the desert sun.

WIFE IN RIVER SAVES SELF

The cold current of the Monongahela River brought new zest for life today to a Mollenauer woman who had leaped into the stream near the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station, Water and Smithfield streets, police reported.

With water dripping from her hair and clothing, Mrs. Anna Kretchman, 32, walked into the station and told Railroad Policeman Arnold Reich:

"I changed my mind."

Reich reported that Mrs. Kretchman told him she had decided to end her life and threw herself into the river. When she was submerged, however, the instinct to live overpowered her wish for death. She regained her footing, and waded to shore.

She was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital for observation. She gave no reason for her actions, police said.

Famed Priest, Chaplain To Lepers, Stricken

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—On Molokai, refuge of lepers of the Hawaaian Islands, a French priest is building himself a little house apart from the mission buildings that have been his residence during the past eight years.

Like the famed Father Damien, he will make the island his permanent home—fighting the leprosy that has seized him and carrying on his work of ministering to the stricken.

He is Father Peter d'Orgeval, noted war chaplain, Parisian preacher and fourth successor to Father Damien as chaplain to the lepers.

The Maryknoll fathers announced today receipt of word that he has contracted the disease from those he left his home to help.

Besides Father Damien, Father d'Orgeval is the only chaplain to Molokai who has fallen prey to it.

A popular preacher, he became a chaplain in the French army during the World War and was decorated six times.

When peace came, he returned to his preaching, but a throat ailment, caused by a gas attack, impaired his speaking ability. Then he volunteered to go to the leper colony.

GAIN IN CHURCH ATTENDANCE PARLEY AIM

New methods for increased church attendance and improved preaching were important matters before the annual national conference on evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America which opened a three-day session today in Hotel William Penn.

That the Easter attendance in churches was the largest since the World War was a report made at a breakfast conference preceding the general session. It was shown that the attendance cycle today reveals increased memberships, a usual rise during economic distress that generally drops during periods of prosperity.

The Rev. Dr. William H. Foulkes, of Newark, presided as chairman of the department of evangelism. The Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr and President R. C. Hutchison, of Washington and Jefferson College, were afternoon speakers.

Public meetings will be held nightly in the hotel with Bishop William F. McDowell, Washington, the principal speaker tonight. George Irving, of the Y. M. C. A., also will be heard.

Flaherty and four companions, Harry Robinson, 25, of 919 Galveston avenue; Peter Dunlap, 21, 511 Taylor avenue; John Morgan, 24, 835 East Ohio street, and Michael O'Donnell, 21, of 520 Pressley street, were held for further investigation by Magistrate Raymond E. Schneider in North Side Police Court after members of a police radio patrol testified they acted suspiciously at the American Gas Company station, Beech and Irwin avenues.

B. U. Nolan, of 1304 Superior avenue, attendant, summoned the police. It was testified Robinson was carrying a loaded revolver.

Judge's View Snarls W. Va. Beer Status

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 19.—(AP.)—The beer situation in West Virginia was confused today by the statement of Federal Judge George W. McClintic before the grand jury that the state beer act violated the state constitution.

With no contests pending in the state courts questioning the constitutionality of the state 3.2 beer act enacted last week by the Legislature, the Tax Commissioner's office continued issuing licenses to handle the beverage.

U. S. FIGHTING BEER RACKETS

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP.)—The Prohibition Bureau and the Justice Department were united today in a determined effort to keep beer racketeers and gangsters out of the legitimate brewing business.

This was the upshot of a controversy involving A. V. Dalrymple, the new prohibition director, over the issuance of permits in New Jersey, one of which went to a man listed as a gangster and who was killed in a shooting affray.

Dr. James H. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, who is charged with responsibility for issuing brewery permits, asserted that some of the New Jersey permits had been rushed through at the request of Dalrymple.

The prohibition director in a stormy meeting with reporters dictated a statement in which he said that haste had been urged to get revenue flowing in from beer.

Man Drinks Beer Awaiting Death By Suicide

WILMINGTON, Del., April 19.—(INS.)—Seven bottles of foaming 3.2 beer buoyed up the courage of a man believed to be Fred Wade, 38, of East Orange, N. J., as he waited patiently for death in the suicide chamber which he had made of his automobile, police disclosed today.

The man drove his car into a field near a highway, closed the windows, attached a hose to the exhaust pipe and pulled it up through the floor boards, started the motor and waited for the carbon monoxide gas to kill him.

But before death overtook him he managed to drain seven bottles of beer from a case he had in the car.

3 GUNMEN ROB STORE OF $400

Three gunmen hurried out of the Potter McCune Company's branch wholesale grocery store at 119 South Eighteenth street today with $400.

As the stickup men, guns drawn and 'kerchiefs covering their faces, strode in, they ordered two clerks, Marshall Nelson, of Brentwood, and Charles Reed, of Negley avenue, to drop to the floor in a rear room.

The gunmen took the clerks' wallets, found them empty and tossed them to the floor. Then, emptying the cash register, they departed.

SACCO-VANZETTI JUDGE DIES

BOSTON, April 19.—(AP.)—Webster Thayer, the Massachusetts judge who pronounced sentence of death upon Nicholas Sacco and Bartholmew Vanzetti, was dead today at the age of 75.

The jurist succumbed to cerebral embolism. He became ill Friday in his room at the University Club here, and his condition had been too critical for him to be moved. His wife was with him from the time he was stricken.

Judge Thayer's conduct of the trial in 1920 of Sacco and Vanzetti, worker-radicals charged with shooting a paymaster and his guard during a holdup, his denial of a new trial for the convicted men, and his imposition of the death penalty seven years later, caused him to be one of the most bitterly attacked judges in legal history. Likewise, he was one of the most stoutly defended.

Last fall the Thayer's home in Worcester was destroyed by a bomb which slightly wounded Mrs. Thayer. After the bombing a state trooper in plainclothes was assigned to guard the judge and remained with him wherever he went.

Strife in Church, School to Be Used

Heeding his plea that services in his church under police guard "are likely to be molested," the Board of Public Education today had granted the Rev. M. L. Gordon, Negro pastor of the Bethany Baptist Church, Tioga street, permission to conduct services Sunday in the Baxter School.

Strife among members of the congregation over failure of some of the church officers to be re-elected has resulted in a court contest.

PINCHOT WARNS STATE MAY 'GO BROKE'

HARRISBURG, April 19.—Gov. Pinchot today declared that if a treasury surplus of $14,000,000 is appropriated for relief, without replacement through new revenue, the state will be broke in four months.

He warned that such an appropriation would result after June 1 in abatements of allocations to hospitals, mothers' assistance, colleges and universities.

The situation would be similar to that after the special session of 1931 passed the Talbot $10,000,000 relief bill without providing revenue, he said. At that time institutional appropriations were abated under a decision of the Supreme Court.

The Governor's statement was in reply to an attack in the Senate yesterday by Senator Harry B. Scott, who charged the Governor was the greatest single obstacle to agreement on unemployment legislation.

The Governor said:

"The organization (Republican state organization) wants to rifle the State Treasury by spending this $14,000,000 without replacing it. They say that this money is available for relief. This as absolutely false.

"If this money is spent and not replaced, in August the state will not be able to meet its payments to schools, hospitals, farmers for cattle indemnities, mothers' assistance, and bills for the ordinary work of the government. Moreover, no money will be available for relief.

"It is my duty as Governor to warn the people of the state of this bold attempt the organization is making to break the Treasury."

JUDGE BILL HIT BY MUSMANNO

A suggestion that every judge in Allegheny County state unequivocally his opinion of the judicial designation bill and that the lawyers of Allegheny County hold a referendum on the same bill came today from Judge M. A. Musmanno, speaking before the City Post of the American Legion in the Nixon Restaurant.

Judge Musmanno minced no words in his indictment of the bill, passed yesterday by the Senate in Harrisburg. He called it not the designation bill but the "judicial degration bill." This is the bill which forces a judicial candidate to name the incumbent judge to whose office he aspires.

Judge Musmanno used the coming September primary, in which three judgeships will be at stake, as an example. He emphasized that a candidate might run second highest on the ticket and still be defeated because he was forced to run against only one incumbent.

Private Detective Curb Bill Defeated

HARRISBURG, April 19.—(AP.)—The House last night defeated the Hoopes bill requiring public hearings on applications for private detective licenses.

Representative Clinton A. Sowers, Philadelphia, opposed the measure and asserted that if the bill was enacted lawyers would be unable to conduct private investigations. Representative Darlington J. Hoopes, Berks, Socialist, sponsor of the bill, said the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor is behind the bill.

House Votes to Ban 'Yellow-Dog' Pacts

HARRISBURG, April 19.—(AP.)—The House today had approved a bill outlawing "yellow-dog contracts" in Pennsylvania.

The bill, making such contracts illegal and sponsored by Representative Kane, Allegheny, as a workmen's measure, passed finally without a dissenting vote.

POLITICS

Legislature Restive As Leaders Flounder

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 19.—There has never been in all the history of Pennsylvania a legislative session quite as remarkable as the one which now is staggering through its sixteenth week.

Mr. Shields

There was presented yesterday the incident of a small group of members of the House and Senate getting together this late with one of the Republican leaders and demanding that he outline a program of legislation. Otherwise these members said they would like to shut up shop and go home, tired of the fumbling and hesitancy and incoherence which has marked the course in Harrisburg since early January.

Probably never before has the plea been made for a program in the sixteenth week of a session.

There are members who are beginning to resent the situation. They are, however, circumscribed by rules, written and unwritten, for which they themselves are responsible. They are unable to extricate themselves through a gesture of positive revolt. They must have help from those who have bound them, and whose dominance, though it is a dominance without strength, they resent.

* * *

Republican Leadership Threatened With Fall

This spirit is found all through the House. It is breeding a resentment which bodes ill for the present leadership of the Republican party, and may result in a Democratic governor next year because there will be no zeal behind a Republican movement.

There are members who feel they have been put on the spot. They point out that they have been committed to a policy of economy, cutting school teachers' salaries, judges' pay and the remuneration of state employes. Yet they note in a list made public yesterday of new state employes in the Auditor General's and State Treasurer's department, that State Treasurer Martin, also Republican state chairman and dejure leader of the party, has increased salaries of some of his help.

The members want to know what kind of a business that is.

They also want to know why they are compelled to vote on a beer control and tax bill, such as the Sowers bill, which has absolutely no chance of becoming law because of the inevitable Pinchot veto, the inevitableness of which was known when the bill was passed. They want to know whether they are going to be compelled to challenge the Governor's veto, a hopeless gesture. They may balk and force the bill into a quiet and non-controversial death.

* * *

Serious Errors Made By Pinchot

There is no question at all but what Mr. Pinchot has made some serious mistakes in this session. He has lacked the punch and forthright direction which marked his first term as Governor. He has involved himself in some queer political bargains, and has gathered associates here and there who are strange companions for an adventure of purity and light.

But the opposition has been unable to capitalize on these mistakes because it has been itself so thoroughly incompetent.

Mr. Pinchot has capacity in his own right. But he is a magnified personality by comparison with the capability of his enemies. They continue to confer with him, make agreements, then get no further than the outside door before they are attempting to devise means of breaking the pledges given.

Naturally this faithlessness accrues to the advantage of the Governor, who gets the full worth out of every shattered promise of his foes. They will not take the advice of that veteran leader from Montgomery County, Charles Johnson, to stay away from the Governor.

TAX COLLECTOR FEES CUT BY ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, April 19. — The Coyne delinquent tax collector bill was passed today by the House. The measure already has passed the Senate, and now goes to the Governor, who is expected to sign it.

The bill cuts fees of the Delinquent Tax Collector in half, making them 5 per cent. The bill is the outgrowth of a long battle to abolish the fees entirely to put the Tax Collector on a salary. A bill for that purpose, introduced by Senator William D. Mansfield, was killed in committee, the Coyne bill being supported.

In past years the delinquent tax collector has made more than $100,000 annually. Coyne estimates the net fees will be no more than $25,000 under his bill.

The only negative vote in the House was that of Representative William A. Walker, Avalon.

The Mansfield bill, recommended by the County Commissioners, to cut the costs paid to magistrates in discharged cases was passed by the House. It has passed the Senate.

A bill to permit the County Commissioners to issue bonds for the construction of a juvenile home also was passed in the House.

DRY FIGHT SURE, RUSSELL SAYS

Delay of a court fight on the constitutionality of beer does not indicate a legal contest is not in the offing, according to the Rev. Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League of America, here today for the evangelism conference of the Federal Council of Churches.

The legal battle is being put into shape, Dr. Russell said, and action is expected to be taken within a short time. He stated that the league was organizing an educational campaign to fight repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. He added:

"While the advent of beer really indicated a slip for the dry agencies, yet the fight will be carried on more strenuously. Unfortunately many supporters felt the battle was won with the beginning of prohibition and relaxed their support. They will renew the efforts now, and through educational campaigns for youth, as well as adult, the league will meet the repeal issue."

BEER CONTROL LOST IN MAZE

yers who could, in these dull days, pick up some pleasing fees representing clients in appealing for licenses. There would be no such pickings if the treasurers dealt out the licenses.

Yesterday afternoon in the Governor's office Senators McClure, Buckman and Harris, Democratic State Chairman Warren Van Dyke and others met with the Governor and McClure agreed to try to have the Sowers bill reconsidered to strike out the judges and substitute treasurers.

MYSTERY MAKERS

This was the same group which met in the same place last week and came to the same agreement. So there's that, and what does it mean?

The funny part of this latest agreement is that Senator McClure is the only member of the conference committee who seems to know anything about it.

Another story is that an effort will be made to have the judges in Philadelphia and Allegheny counties issue the licenses, with treasurers performing a similar office in other counties. There are some senators for that, and some not. Mr. Pinchot isn't.

Representative Sowers asked our Democratic fellow-townsman, Dave Lawrence, if the Democrats would go along with still a different plan: to have Judges issue licenses in first, second and third-class counties, there being some lawyers in the smaller counties who would like to get in on this beer business—even though Judges almost everywhere have said they want nothing to do with the licensing.

Mr. Lawrence replied that Mr. Sowers was even funnier than usual, knowing full well that the Governor would veto any such proposition.

There may be some significance in this.

TAX PLAN REJECTED

Last night a Mr. Jones, a member of the Legislature from Luzerne County, tried to introduce a resolution to tax beer. That would give the state revenue, even under the present system of no control. Mr. Witkin, of Philadelphia, objected, and, as unanimous consent was necessary, this chance to smack on a tax had to be passed up.

Mr. Jones tried to have his resolution considered today, but he was voted down, 103 to 63, and it cannot come up until tomorrow in regular order.

Representative John J. Kane charged there was a deliberate attempt to save brewers from taxation through holding up consideration of legislation which might become law.

So this is what the beer situation is at the moment, Mr. Editor. It doesn't make much sense, does it? But then this is the Legislature we are talking about, and if you were down here you wouldn't expect much sense on the subject.

Certainly I can't tell you what is going to happen to beer taxation and regulation, for no one knows.

But anyhow, we have our daily beer story—and pretty good beer, if you ask me.

MARK SHIELDS.

PINCHOT TO ACT ON BLUE LAWS

HARRISBURG, April 19.—(INS.)—Assurance that Gov. Gifford Pinchot will not dodge the Sunday sports issue but will give a verdict on the Schwartz bill within the next few days was established on Capitol Hill today.

After listening to proponents and opponents of blue law modification, the Governor shattered the suspicions of many that he would permit the bill to become law by taking no action before midnight Saturday. He said:

"I will act on the bill within a day or so, and then will announce my verdict to the press."

Assembly Approves' County Bridge Tolls

HARRISBURG, April 19.—A bill authorizing Allegheny County to levy and collect tolls on certain county bridges for paying off indebtedness in locating, constructing and purchasing such bridges, needed only the Governor's signature to become law today. The measure, sponsored by Senator Mansfield, Allegheny County, was passed finally by the House and sent to the Governor yesterday.

Lawrence Barred From House Floor As 'Lobbyist'

HARRISBURG, April 19.—(AP.)—An "open season" on a third type of lobbyist has been declared in the House of Representatives.

Speaker Grover C. Talbot issued an ultimatum that "party lobbyists, whether Republican or Democrat, must be kept off the floor of the House," and he asserted "this rule will be rigidly enforced."

The Speaker's newest order came after David Lawrence, Allegheny County Democratic chairman, had appeared on the floor of the House.

Race Betting Bill Advanced to Senate

HARRISBURG, April 19.—The Senate today had received from the House the Baldi-Peters measure, legalizing horse racing and pari-mutuel betting and earmarking the revenue from a 5 per cent tax on wagers for mothers' assistance fund payments.

Eviction, Child Wage Measures Passed

HARRISBURG, April 19.—(AP.)—Two bills sponsored by labor groups passed in the House last night without debate. They are: The Hoopes (Berks) bill permitting courts to stay evictions and the Fitzgerald bill creating a commission to fix minimum wages of women and children.

CLUB BACKING PLAN TO TAX BILLBOARDS

Framework for a gigantic sign stretching across the face of Mt. Washington high above Point Bridge awaits prosperity's return to bring it a new advertiser, say Civic Club of Allegheny County officials.

It was first erected to advertise a gum and later leased by a manufacturer of electrical refrigerators. When the Civic Club protested, the electrical company, although its contract had not expired painted out the sign, and now only the gaunt frameworks for the huge letter mar the cliff.

By a legal technicality, the city can refuse a permit to build a new sign but it cannot prevent repair or reconstruction of the old. Part of the land on which the sign stands is zoned as a residential section and part as commercial.

Meanwhile, the generosity and civic consciousness of the electric company has not been matched by other advertisers, who seem to see the hillsides along Pittsburgh rivers not as beauty spots but as sites for glaring billboards. Civic Club officials claim. Hoping to decrease the number of distracting and unsightly billboards, the club is strongly backing the Harris bill providing for a tax on billboards and their regulation.

The City and Highways Appearance Committee meets today to consider ways and means for aiding the Harris bill. With H. A. Nomer, headmaster at Shady Side Academy, as chairman, the committee will make plans also for a continuation of the campaign for more beautiful and attractive roadways, including the removal of billboards from boulevards and hillsides. It is the hope of the committee, says Mrs. J. G. Prontefract, the public will learn to see the ugliness and danger in glaring billboards. In time, she believes, an advertiser who spoils a beautiful view with a glaring sign will create more ill will than good.

It is Mrs. Pontefract who has so often invoked the present law to remove "wildcat" signs from public property along the highways.

Mrs. Fahringer's Funeral Tomorrow

Mrs. Marion Becker Fahringer, 26, died yesterday at her home in Wilkins Township. She leaves her husband, Robert W.; a son, Paul; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Becker, and a brother, Russell.

She was a member of the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at her late home with the Rev. Dr. E. C. McCown, of Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church, officiating.

CHILDREN URGE PLAYGROUND

Nineteenth Ward school children have mobilized to turn into a park and playground the city's 10 acres of unimproved land near West Liberty School, according to Samuel Easton, of 376 La Marido street. He is manager of the drive for 10,000 petitioners in an appeal to City Council.

Twenty thousand children in Mt. Washington, Brookline and Beechview would be affected by the proposed improvement, as the district is without any recreational facilities, Easton said. Already 3,000 physicians, organization members and individuals have signed petitions urging construction of the playground, with the recommendation that a swimming pool be included.

To get 7,000 additional signers, Easton said, scores of children are canvassing the homes with petitions which he intends to hand to Council May 15. Easton said:

"This district is certainly big enough and deserving enough to warrant this improvement. It would be the first in many years."

"Shingles" a Disabling Affliction

Recently I visited a friend who was convalescing from an attack of shingles. He suffered a great deal and feared another attack. You can imagine his delight when I told him that he would never have shingles again. One attack is very likely to give protection against further attacks.

Dr. Copeland

Shingles is one of the most annoying and distressing ailments known to mankind. "Herpes Zoster" is the medical name for this condition. It is rarely dangerous to life, but may prove to be a disabling and nerve-racking affliction.

The symptoms of the disease closely resemble the fever blisters commonly seen around the lips. In shingles a rash breaks out on the skin along the course of a nerve. The eruption consists of a group of small blisters, each about the size of a small pea. The skin around these blisters becomes reddened and inflamed.

Shingles may form anywhere on the body. They usually follow the course of a nerve on the abdomen, chest, neck, shoulders or arms. Pain is always present in shingles. The pain may be mild or so severe as to prevent sleep. If you have ever suffered from shingles you can appreciate the pain of this affliction.

The eruption appears 12 or 24 hours after the pain begins. The victim does not know what has stricken him and often the diagnosis is confused, until the rash appears. An attack may last from one week to six weeks. The attack may be mild and entirely disappear within a few days.

Shingles usually afflicts elderly people, but may occur in young adults and children. Fortunately, it is mild when it occurs in children and the pain is slight or entirely absent. As I have said, adults may console themselves with the fact that shingles seldom occur twice in the same individual. One attack gives immunity to further attacks.

Shingles is often confused with neuritis and neuralgia. Neuritis is an inflammation of a nerve. No skin eruption is present and the pain is dull and constant. Rheumatic pains occur repeatedly and are aggravated by climatic conditions. Cold and dampness make it worse.

The cause of shingles has never been determined. Though believed to be due to an infection, this has never been proved. I often speak of shingles as the tired man's or tired woman's disease. It is usually a sign of a run-down or fatigued condition. Exposure to cold, overwork and absorption of arsenic, are other factors that must not be overlooked.

The treatment is simple. It consists mainly in the relief of pain and protection against injury and infection of the involved parts. This is accomplished by repeated applications of dressings with antiseptics and soothing lotions.

REFRIGERATION SHOW PLANNED

A special electric refrigeration show will be opened in the Gulf Building Monday, May 1, by the Better Homes and Buildings exhibit of the Gulf Building Company, Seventh avenue. The organization is Pittsburgh's latest institution to glorify the modern home-building art.

In addition to displays and demonstration of newest makes of electric refrigeration, the public will have a chance to see model homes and buildings of the exhibit. The show is designed to present the latest trends in domestic architecture and to demonstrate the correct usage of building materials, furnishings and utilities.

"Electric Street," a thoroughfare 100 feet long and 16 feet wide, flanked by model store fronts, is one of the features of the Better Homes and Buildings exhibit.

Eleven local dealers and distributors of electric refrigeration, through the Electric League of Pittsburgh, will have their products in the exhibition.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Fly at night. The air is smoother, it's cooler and the lights are wonderful. I flew from the West Coast last night over the American airways. The International Society for Crippled Children is in convention in this hustling little western city. If there could be a greater organization it hasn't been invented yet. In the olden days history records they killed their cripples, and even though we don't think so, civilization has advanced. This society has proved that all can be helped and over half can be cured.

Will Rogers

Kansas and Ohio have kinder led the field in this. If your state is not affiliated then it is not doing all that it can to help the most sympathetic invalid we have, the crippled child. Incidentally their statistics show that they are brighter and more cheerful than their unafflicted mates. There is gameness for you.

Yours, WILL.

SONS TO REVIVE CAMPBELL'S

Pittsburgh's merchant world today was thumbing back through the exciting pages of Golden Triangle history and putting its finger on a significant news event of 1887, a prelude to a parallel in today's news.

Campbell's department store, launched in Fifth avenue just six years before by William Campbell, burned to the ground. Campbell, then in the prime of life, made a new start in the old McCandless-Jammison Building in Wood street. Within a year he had built a new store on the site of the demolished building. Later the firm moved to Fifth avenue.

Many an old-timer shook his head when the sixty-years-old business was swept away by the depression, but the sons of William Campbell, P. D. and Frank, today are picking up the threads of that business. It is significant they are doing it on the site of their father's new start, now the Hanan Building, 531 Wood street.

The sons are confident the business tide has turned. P. D. Campbell sums up the story thus:

"It was natural to pick this time for a new start to continue the business father founded in 1871. In my opinion, the individual institution is coming back. The time is here when the buyer likes to know the seller."

Motorcycles Skid, Two Men Injured

Two men were injured, one seriously, early today when motorcycles they were riding skidded on the slippery streets.

Fred Woitas, 28, of 1647 Fallowfield avenue, suffered a probable fracture of the skull when his machine skidded in Washington boulevard. He was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital. Robert Joyner, 26, of Oakland, Cal., suffered lacerations when his motorcycle skidded in Liberty avenue, near Seventh street. He was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

CITY HOLDS UP 'TALKIE' BILLS

City Controller James P. Kerr and the law department are to study bills totaling $1,226.86 for installation of sound motion picture equipment in the city parks in 1932.

Council yesterday voted to review the bills after Councilman Robert Garland said the equipment was ordered by ex-Mayor Charles H. Kline. Garland said only Kline and ward chairmen were benefited by the picture performances. Councilman P. J. McArdle said the city was not liable because Council did not authorize the installation.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang said in a letter he did not recommend payment as his department had not ordered the apparatus.

Council President Harry A. Little contended the city should pay the bills.

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Should Wife Get Up to Make Husband's Breakfast?

Should the Misses crawl out in the cold, gray dawn and cook the big boy's ham 'n' eggs, even though it's hours and hours before she would need to get up otherwise?

Or should the mister rustle them together for himself, while the little wife sleeps on—or else provide a maid?

A lady named Mollie wants to know.

And if I know my sex, there are just about 15,000,000 Mad Mammas in these United States who won't thank her for starting that question. But she did! And now the riot's on, so you might as well listen in.

Dear Miss Robinson:

Here is a little question that I would like to have you answer, if you will be so kind. I'd just like to get your viewpoint on it. I've heard considerable argument about it, from various sources, and it seems to me that you're well enough versed in Things As They Should Be to answer it fairly and squarely.

Should a wife get up and cook her husband's breakfast, when he has to work early and isn't able to afford a maid?

PART OF HER JOB

I sincerely hope that you will give me an answer to this question, because I'm sure it will be of interest to a great many. I know some wives think that it is not right for a man to expect them to get up early and rustle around, just because he has to get on the job. And some of them insist that it is the wife's duty to crawl out and boil the mush, no matter how sleepy she is or what the clock says.

So, please, won't you give your opinion? And whether you think she should or shouldn't, please give your reasons. I'll be waiting for your answer.

MOLLIE.

Should she, or shouldn't she, get the breakfast?

Well, Mollie—why not?

Isn't getting breakfast part of her job?

Yes, of course it's a nuisance. And she's sleepy. And "it does seem as if he could do a little thing like that for himself," instead of waking her up.

But why shouldn't she be waked to do her chores, just as he is waked to do his?

JUST PLAIN LAZINESS

After all, it's up to a wife to earn her way through life, as much as it's up to a husband. A wife doesn't feel that her husband is doing her a Great, Big, Wonderful Favor because he works eight hours per, and pays the bills on the first of the month. To the contrary, she'd think him a lazy, worthless quitter if he didn't! And she'd mighty soon tell it to the judge.

Then, if it's up to a husband to do his share when he marries, why isn't it up to the wife? And why should she expect tears or sympathy when he requests her to get up and get busy?

Of course, if she's an invalid—that's different. But the average lady's disinclination to arise has nothing whatever to do with disease. It's just plain, old-fashioned "bone laziness."

So, mad as it makes me to get 'em myself, I'm all for wives cooking breakfasts. But perhaps you won't agree. So—

Let's hear, and from both sides of the question. Is the Missis just doing her natural duty when she sends the Big Boy out to work, with a warm cup of coffee and a loving smile?

Or is Dad a Brutal Monster if he expects such attention?

Semi-Precious Stones Have More Variety, Fay King Finds

THIS IS THE ALEXANDERITE!
THERE ARE COUNTLESS SEMI-PRECIOUS STONES
PRECIOUS STONES ARE THE MOST COSTLY, BUT MANY SEMI-PRECIOUS STONES ARE JUST AS INTERESTING!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

When we think of jewels we think first, of course, of the precious stones—the pearl, ruby, emerald, sapphire and diamond.

But there are countless other beautiful stones, real, but not so rare or so costly, and so are called semi-precious stones.

There are many persons who can afford the precious stones, but prefer the semi-precious ones. For in these lesser stones, the variety of color, or difference in markings, are a joy to the collector, while the precious stones never vary in their perfections.

Take the opal, for instance. It ranges from the palest shades to the black opal that has orange, purple, red and green fires dancing across its face.

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

At a Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Your column has been a great help to me and I wish to express my appreciation.

I have invited a very fine young man to our junior prom, which is to take place in a few weeks. I have bought the tickets, but I am uncertain as to who is to pay for the checking of the wraps. PATSY.

When you arrive at the entrance of the place where the prom is to take place, you go to the ladies' dressing room and check your wraps, and the young man goes to the men's dressing room. After the dance, you each go for your own wraps, and each gives the attendant the fee.

Correct Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is dead, and I am wondering if I should still use the name of Mrs. Ray E. Downs, or should I use the name of Louise North Downs? North was my maiden name. Or should I use the name Louise N. Downs? READER.

As a widow you should use exactly the same form of name that you used when your husband was living. You may use the same visiting cards (black-bordered visiting cards are not much used now), and you sign your name to letters in precisely the same way.

This, for instance, should be the form of your signature to your letter to me (or for any other kind of letter where the reader is to be informed of your formal name):

Yours sincerely, or (Yours very truly, for a business letter,)

Household Hints

Potato water is excellent for removing tea or coffee stains from linen.

If any odd pieces of material left over after making a frock are washed each time the frock is washed, they will not look so odd if used later on for repairing the garment.

The bottom crusts of fruit pies will not become sodden if, after having lined your dish with paste, the latter is brushed over with a beaten egg and allowed to stand for a few minutes before putting in the fruit.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Gradually the long bob has been deleted. Flying locks do not conform to present day millinery which calls for waves and ringlets at the rear, an arrangement that is both formal and gracious. The side parting hangs on valiantly, the center parting is still holding its own, and the straight back effect remains popular. Since back locks have taken to the uplift, the coronet braid is trying to sneak back. It's not much wider than a ribbon, encircles the head like a wreath. It's counterfeit, of course, but what matters that? False hair is only terrible when you need it.

Have you a beauty plan? Draft out a routine, stick to it; it pays in the long run. Make yourself take five minutes of exercise before the morning bath, stretching, bending, breathing from your heels. At bedtime have a facial creaming and tapping, claw the scalp to rouse up circulation, brush the hair and eyebrows, use a lip ointment, see that the cuticle cream is laid on every finger nail. Incidentally don't overlook elbows. Butter them, too.

Plans Centered on Tracing Mysterious Stranger

"No, they didn't hurt us, except in holding our arms so tightly," Carolyn answered, and I think they all echoed my sharply drawn breath of relief. "That is, they didn't hurt us then and we kicked and fought, too, like wildcats. But they were terribly strong, and in no time they had me pushed back into the bedroom and the door locked, and Marion was being carried off to the kitchen.

"I couldn't see out of the window then, and so I don't know whether they took Marion out of the house or not. But I heard her scream once—I am sure it was her voice—and it sounded as if somebody had clapped a hand over her mouth as soon as she let out the first sound. Then I heard the banging and the crashing, and then Uncle Harry called to open our door and I did. That's all I know. Oh, Marion, Marion! Where are you?"

The child was at the end of her self-control, and I gathered her into my arms and hushed her sobs against my shoulder, assuring her tenderly that we would find Marion, but that she must be strong and not hinder us.

"Did you take any prisoners who might talk?" my father asked.

EVERYBODY GONE

"We didn't see a soul," Hugh answered astoundedly. "The windows and doors were barred securely, and we had quite a time getting in, but when we were once inside there was no sign of anyone. As soon as we found Carolyn and discovered that Marion was gone we divided forces, Harry and most of the men scouting around the shack, four-quartering it as it were, and I bringing Carolyn back here, to get your advice as to our next move. Harry and the rest will report here as soon as they find out anything definite."

"There's only one thing we can do before they come," my father said with quick decision. "Richard!"

The word was like a military command. Dicky's response was equally crisp.

"Here, sir!"

"Can you fly low with that contraption?"

"Yes."

"Then you'd better take it up and go over this section in ever-increasing circles, with the house as the center. Thank Heaven, there'll be a moon pretty soon, and you ought to be able to spot them before they have a chance to get far. So you'd better get started, lad."

"I can go this second, sir," Dicky returned, and something in his voice made me suddenly tense, watchful. I have heard that note before, and it always presages some action of his in which there is a touch of malice.

TO FLY WITH HUGH

"But," he hesitated for the fraction of a second, and my pulses pounded, "I cannot fly the thing and watch the terrain beneath at the same time. Oh! it can be done," he amended hurriedly, "but at night, this way, there really should be somebody with me, somebody who's used to the air. You've been a passenger on air boats haven't you, Hugh?"

I caught my breath. I saw his intention now, and fought grimly to down the terror which fast was creeping over me. For if my imagination were not playing me false, Dicky's very utterance of Hugh's name was a sneer, while as for his inquiry—

"Not only as a passenger," Hugh replied evenly. "I've flown a bit, too. I'm not in your class, of course, but at least I shan't be air-sick, if you want me to go up with you."

"That's so much to the good," he said. "But we'd better be off. So long, folks."

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Lay-Down Slam

As indicative of the skill of the Viennese card-players, Mr. Ing. E. Klein tells the story of the hand below, in which a very fine card-player was kibitzing the South hand on which South had reached a Slam contract in hearts. South was an excellent player and was considering the hand after the Opening lead of the club Queen on the basis of a possible strip or squeeze, when the kibitzer remarked:

"What are you waiting for? This is a lay-down Small Slam."

The hand was:

South, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable:

	♠ A Q ♡ J 10 6 ◇ A Q 10 4 3 ♣ K 4 2
♠ 10 8 7 5 4 3 2 ♡ 8 4 ◇ — ♣ Q J 10 8	North West East South	♠ 9 6 ♡ 3 2 ◇ K J 8 7 6 5 ♣ 9 7 6
	♠ K J ♡ A K Q 9 7 5 ◇ 9 2 ♣ A 5 3

Laying aside for a moment the question of the entrance of the kibitzer into the play of the hand, it is indeed interesting to analyze his reasons for the rapid but accurate analysis of the possibilities of the cards. It is, of course, apparent that the adverse trumps may be easily exhausted and the Dummy and Declarer's hand stripped of spades and clubs and the lead thrown to West on the third lead of clubs, assuring the contract if he holds the King of diamonds or leads any card but a diamond. This knowledge, however, is valueless, as it still would leave the contract up to the diamond finesse, which may or may not win. The line of play suggested by the kibitzer, and which succeeds against any defense, is slightly unusual, but actually brilliant and at the same time simple.

The first step was to win the first trick with the Ace of clubs and then exhaust the adverse trumps. The next play was the simple one of winning a trick with the Ace of diamonds and refusing a finesse in the suit. Now, as a matter of fact, South found the worst possible distribution of the diamond suit—namely, six to the King-Knave behind Dummy's major tenace holding. However, the contract was still safe. After taking the first diamond trick with the Ace, a small diamond was led from Dummy. Regardless of East's play, one diamond must be established for a discard of the losing club and the safety of the contract assured.

It is obvious that to have staked the success of the hand upon a winning finesse in diamonds would have lost, but refusing to finesse the diamond suit at all assured the success of the contract and made true the statement of the kibitzer that the hand was a lay-down Small Slam.

GUY LOMBARDO HERE -:- Southernaires Begin 'Rocking Chair Memories' -:- ON AIR TONIGHT

WJAS Sends Network Program

Guy Lombardo is in town.

Which means that tonight is a big one for Pittsburgh, inasmuch as it becomes one of the focal cities for a nation-wide two-point broadcast—the Lombardo-Burns and Allen weekly radio show at 9:30 p. m.

Lombardo, whose music will feature the Anatole Club's Easter ball at the Grotto tonight, is to present his chain program from the WJAS studios, with the comedy team going on the air from Los Angeles. Commercial announcements also will emanate from the WJAS studios, William Brenton, CBS announcer, having journeyed to Pittsburgh specially for the occasion.

"Night and Day," "Chloe" and "Moon Song" are among Guy's orchestral highlights, Phil Regan, appearing in Pittsburgh with Lombardo, contributes Isham Jones' latest success, "You've Got Me Cryin' Again," as the vocal feature.

Rocking Chair Songs

Harking back to the days when mammy held her little pickaninny in her arms and sang him to sleep, the Southernaires, Negro quartet, open a series of "Rocking Chair Memories" on WCAE at 9:15 p. m. The programs, to be heard weekly, will be entirely melodic with all spoken interruptions barred.

Florence Fisher Parry discusses "Glamor in Business" as the principal speaker during a broadcast from the banquet of the Retail Research Bureau, University of Pittsburgh, over WWSW at 7 o'clock.

Three Pittsburgh harmony outfits—the Pioneers, the Rhythm Kings and the Strollerettes—and Alexander Roy, tenor, supported by the KDKA staff orchestra, are featured in the pioneer station's weekly revue, "KD Kalendar of Stars," at 7:30 p. m.

Seibel to Pay Markham Tribute

By AIRCASTER

George Seibel, Sun-Telegraph literary and dramatic critic, will pay tribute to Edward Markham on the latter's eighty-first birthday over KDKA and its short-wave unit, W8XK, Sunday at 9:45 p. m. Markham is famed as the author of "The Man With the Hoe" . . .

Sunday also being Shakespeare's birthday, CBS-WJAS plans to put Otis Skinner, Jane Cowl and Rollo Peters on the air in a 30-minute dramatic memorial program devoted to excerpts from "Hamlet" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Following several months' absence from the air-waves, Ralph Federer has returned to the WCAE forces.

Bernie Returning

Yow-suh, yow-suh and . . . yow-suh!

That good ol' maestro, Ben Bernie, and all the lads, are going to pay us a return visit—this time to hold forth at Eddie Peyton's club, Steubenville pike, on Tuesday evening, April 25.

And it being that particular evening, his regular Tuesday NBC-WEAF network program will be aired from this city through WCAE facilities.

* * *

Two other ambassadors of good will to grace our fair city by their presence are Amos 'n' Andy—in person—who, en route westward, will arrive here Friday afternoon. They'll present their 7 p. m. NBC program from the studios of KDKA.

Among the interesting items on the WCAE outlook is the 7:15 p. m. show slated for April 23, which brings Tom Dooley and Danny Burkex, two country store rustics who have been slaying 'em via WGY.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

An urgent appeal has come to me from Walter Flevanis, a member of the Conservation Army from Pittsburgh, now stationed at Fortress Monroe, Va. He says the boys are happy but are craving news from home. Some of the lads down there are experiencing their first days away from the family hearth and now and then get a touch of the well-known homesick blues. If you have friends or relatives there, will you write?

* * *

Despite the published account that Thelma Snyder's birthday would fall on Easter Day every 11 years, Sue Irwin Young maintains that it won't fall on Easterday again until 1995, and then again in 2006.

Well we'll wait and see.

* * *

Mrs. Elizabeth Zahn, of Avalon, also born on Easter Day (April 9) 1882, and she hasn't had an Easter birthday since and doesn't expect one until 1939, and then she will get three on that day in the next 11 years.

* * *

It's time that Mrs. J. Bayer's cat gets a little publicity. It drinks water from the gold fish, but doesn't touch the fish. Still I bet the fish worry.

* * *

Leo B. Kleiman—The National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia System distributed their programs by wire, land wire and not wireless. Sometimes their receiving stations receive a program via wireless from across the seas or other distant places but the local outlets take it from the chain wires.

* * *

Today we spent several happy moments opening belated packages of decorated Easter eggs. We are going to keep them to look at. One that I ate the other day was obviously meant just for that and I regretted exceedingly, trying anything else with it.

* * *

W. M. W., of McKeesport has given us this assignment! He wants by Thursday 200 words on compulsory military training; 200 on whether public works are more a liability than an asset, and 200 words on what is wrong with state financing.

You better call on Senator Huey Long; words don't mean so much to him.

Mayor's Address At Food Show Broadcast

Ceremonies attending the opening of the Food Show at Motor Square Garden, including an address by Mayor John S. Herron, are to be broadcast over KQV from 7:30 to 8 o'clock tonight.

Maude Ingersoll and her Colonial Girls provide the musical portion of the program.

Gov. Cross Speaks Tomorrow

Talks by two nationally-famed personalities are listed for daytime listeners on WCAE and WJAS tomorrow.

Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, of Connecticut, speaks on "Achieving Financial Independence" over the Columbia network and WJAS at 2:30 p. m.

Seals to Welcome Pirate Stars Tonight

Celebrating the Pirates' homecoming for their first Pittsburgh game of the season at Forbes Field tomorrow, the Trained Seals stage a gala "Welcome" on WCAE tonight at 6:40.

One by one, Freddie Lindstrom, new outfielder; Pie Traynor, captain; Floyd Vaughan, shortstop; Honus Wagner, coach, and President Bill Benswanger come to the microphone to be interviewed by Charles J. Doyle, Sun-Telegraph baseball expert who accompanied the team to the Coast.

A similar rally, with Paul Waner, Sam Watters, Benswanger, Wagner and Traynor as speakers, is listed on WJAS from 8 to 8:30.

Traynor and Lindstrom, with Waite Hoyt and Manager George Gibson, also are scheduled to appear on KDKA at 10:15. On the same station at 11, Larry French and Earl Grace appear as Tony Wakeman's "Sports Review" guests.

String Ensemble Concert on Air

Oscar Del Bianco, directing the String Symphonic Ensemble of Pittsburgh, features the radio premier of "A Dream Fantasy," the work of Alice Meninger Stemple, Pittsburgh composer, and three of his own compositions, "Scherzo," "Noveletta" and "Nina Nanna," during a concert in Carnegie Lecture Hall broadcast by WWSW at 8:30. PRESIDENT DAY TRIBUTE BY GIRL SCOUTS

Girl Scouts in Allegheny County will take cognizance of President's Day, April 30. A suggestion that they may attend church on that day in troops, where feasible, will be made to them.

Mrs. Laura H. McDonald, director of the Scouts here, will make the suggestion to the troops, she said today. The scouts last attended church in groups during March, when Scout Week was observed.

Likewise, in nearly every community in the state, members of the Order of Amaranth will take part in services for the President's Day.

At the thirteenth annual convention of the order yesterday in the William Penn Hotel, Miss Lucy Lyons, of Pittsburgh, made a motion that the order indorse the movement, and urge its membership, said to be in excess of 15,000, to note the day. Grand Royal Matron Mrs. Dora B. Smith, also of Pittsburgh, presided during the session. The motion was passed unanimously.

The establishment of the new holiday, when prayers are to be offered in gratitude for the President's efforts in behalf of the nation, and also that his health and efforts may continue, met with general favor throughout Pittsburgh, the state and nation.

MOVE TO BLOCK LAND SEIZURE

An equity proceeding has been started by the Pennsylvania Water Company against Allegheny County Commissioners to prevent taking any of the property on which the Nadine Station pumping plant is situated.

The company declared it had been informed the Commissioners plan eminent domain proceedings to take part of the property for the Allegheny River Boulevard.

The company said a strip of land in question is used for the storage of coal.

MUSIC

Mendelssohn Choir

Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir closed its present season last night in Carnegie Music Hall with Ernest Lunt conducting. There was a cantata of Bach, "God's Time Is the Best," and a contemporary work, "Belshazzar's Feast," by the British composer, William Walton. Upon the completion of this oratorio, Mr. Lunt invited the audience to remain and hear this work repeated, and with extraordinary loyalty and interest many accepted and the choir sang again that most trying score.

Mr. Lissfelt

This concert was another high mark in the achievements of the Mendelssohn Choir. The difficulties of the Walton music are almost excessive, for he attains his effects by complex writing in harmony and rhythms which are made to mislead the most experienced singers.

There are heights and depths in the vocal line which are as uncomfortable for solo singers as well as for voices in unison. The choir surmounted all these difficulties admirably and seemed to gain vastly in power of expression through this experience.

This "Belshazzar's Feast" excites our interest not for individual choruses, not alone for its dramatic use of unaccompanied recitative, not by its invigorating and pungent dissonance, but by its compactness, its unity, and the rapid progress towards climax. The repetition of certain choruses binds the dramatic idea which the composer never loses in padding nor ineffectual solo work. He has pruned his music to the main trunk and what stands is solid to the core.

The Bach cantata I found a little hurried and particularly without repose were the two solo parts for tenor and baritone. I believe a fast tempo does not create in this work the joy which Bach meant us to find in his music. Sarah Logan struck the right space in her reliable and calm manner, and, as always, the voice was beautifully suited to her solo.

The contralto choir as accompaniment to the bass solo was most commendable and here too Chester Sterling, as soloist, found his best lines. Paul G. Nagle sang the brief tenor solo.

Edward B. Williams, baritone, learned the recitatives well for the Walton music and sang them with an assurance that was as praiseworthy as the work of the chorus. To have adapted this work, originally written with orchestral background, for organ accompaniment, and to have succeeded in coloring it as successfully as Earl Mitchell did last night demands utmost respect for this young man's secure talents.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Rupert Hughes, Author, Lauds 'President's Day'

Roosevelt Praised For Bringing End To Despondency

Rupert Hughes, distinguished playwright, novelist and motion picture writer, author of "George Washington, the Human Being and the Hero," strongly approves the observance of "President's Day" on Sunday, April 30, in tribute to President Roosevelt. He tells readers of the Sun-Telegraph why.

By RUPERT HUGHES
Written for Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, April 19.—No other President in all our American history has in so short a time won such incredible popularity as Franklin D. Roosevelt, or so swiftly and utterly changed the whole spirit of the nation.

He will undoubtedly encounter his dark hours of disfavor and hostility, for no President has escaped them. But he is used to opposition. He came to the White House after an extremely bitter campaign under a cloud of doubt as to his sincerity and efficiency.

HURLS THUNDERBOLTS

As soon as he was inaugurated he began to hurl thunderbolts and illumine the murky air with lightnings. He routed despondency as a heavy storm clears the air.

Though he closed all the banks as his first step, he slammed the doors with such dramatic suddenness that he shocked the country out of its apathy.

The fog kept closing in again and is still dense, and the way is dangerous, but incessantly the Roosevelt electricity breaks through.

He has brought the country to a nonpartisan unity never approached since Washington's earliest days.

With simply dazzling rapidity he has cut off the heads of the hydra. He has lifted not only the morale, but the morals of the country.

CHAMPIONS HONESTY

He dared to utter that great call to honesty: "Let the seller also beware."

It wakened in the nation an almost forgotten sense of probity.

We had fallen amazingly deep into the belief, or at least the habit of assuming, that big financial sins are virtues; that there is genius in success, however attained; that the crookedest procedure is straight provided it makes money; and most of all, that selling something fraudulent is rather clever provided it is sold to enough people.

When a leader can advocate high honor in high places, and at the same time feel and excite pity for the downtrodden, the unlucky, the mortgaged, he is both a prophet and a philanthropist.

I have not met one voter against him in November who does not now rejoice in his election.

24 Men, 5 Women Arrested in 3 Raids

A small quantity of moonshine was seized by North Side and Hill District police in three raids early today, they reported. At 1326 Sherman avenue, Harry Moore, 29, of 1209 Veto street, was arrested, charged with keeping a disorderly house, and nine men and five women as visitors.

Joseph Forte and 12 men were arrested at 1305 Wylie avenue. Angelo Degalbo, 44, was charged with keeping a disorderly house at 632 Herron avenue.

How Do Dancers Manage?

The professional engagements of a dancer make no allowance for the trying time of a woman's monthly sickness. Yet her period must not interfere with her easy, effortless performance. Such women do not "fight" periodic pain, but avoid it. The use Midol, and do not suffer even a twinge of menstrual pain. Why don't you meet these monthly emergencies with this remarkable modern discovery?

Midol takes pain off the calendar. Monthly martyrdom is foolish. For Midol is as harmless as the aspirin tablet you take for your headache! All drug stores; just ask for Midol.

SCHOOL JOB AGE LIMIT RAISED

Overruling a recommendation of the Property and Supplies Committee, the Board of Public Education yesterday set the age limit for appointment of women as lunch room supervisors in the public schools at 50 instead of 40.

The recommendation of the age limit, the same as is required for teachers, was made by Mrs. J. M. Phillips. Mrs. Mary J. Cowley cast the only dissenting vote.

The committee's eligibility rules requiring that supervisors must have not less than two years of education beyond a high school course and have one year of "institutional management and dietetics" were approved.

Even though Lent is over, benefits aren't, we're glad to say, for without them what would we have done for diversion during the past winter?

But this isn't a benefit for the unemployed—it's for Shady Side Academy. The art committee interested in beautifying the school, will hold a benefit bridge Thursday afternoon at the Fox Chapel school.

Mrs. Alfred B. Dickey is chairman of the committee, assisted by Mrs. Clarence B. Watkins, Mrs. Donald Clark and Mrs. Fernando Weil.

The Sewickley Child Health Association has changed its plans for the May benefit. Instead of the party early in the month, the girls will give a patchy party on May 20, according to publicity, in the Edgeworth Club.

Plans Changed

The A. B. McQuowns, of Wellington Heights, are home from Bermuda.

The Lawrence Barrs have returned from Pinehurst. And the Dwight Winters and Emil Winter are at White Sulphur Springs, having driven there for Easter. They've taken one of the penthouse apartments at the Greenbrier.

New York visitors include Mrs. Howard Heinz and Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, who have been at the St. Regis; and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pickering, who has been at the Weylin.

* * *

Everyone in the smart set interested in amateur theatricals was at the Twentieth Century Club last night for another Stage and Play Society production with three one-act plays on the program.

Plays Given

The Stage and Play acting is done by members, and so is the directing and stage managing and everything else that goes with producing a play. Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, who is stage manager, is one of the most faithful members of Stage and Play.

Another active member is James W. Macfarlane, who wrote one of the plays given last night, "Down One Diamond." Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Jr., and Mrs. Isaac B. Thomas directed "Highness," and the Carnegie Tech night students gave a play in place of "The Workhouse Ward," by Lady Gregory.

I just don't have space to mention all those in the large audience. I recall seeing Mrs. George S. Oliver and her demure young daughter, Laura, Mrs. Clark Miller, Mrs. Mortimer Miller and her daughter, Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, Neil Stewart Zang and her mother, Mrs. William Zang, and her fiance, George C. Stephenson and Mrs. William Maclay Hall.

Seen in Audience

Others included Mrs. Charles Dahlinger, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Louise Evans and her mother, Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans, Annette Chester, Mrs. A. C. Martin, Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Eleanor Grier, Mrs. George Pearson, Martha Edmondson and Joseph M. Scribner and his little daughter, Judson, there to see Mrs. Scribner, one of the actresses for the evening.

Added to the pre-nuptials of this week is a luncheon Martha Yost and Lois Tack will give tomorrow in the Allegheny Country Club for Betty Higgins, who'll marry Thomas Edward Rhodes, of Sewickley, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Ruth Smith Names April 29 For Wedding

Miss Ruth Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Smith, of Jucunda street, Knoxville, has chosen April 29 as the date for her marriage to Henry D. Monsch, of Grantwood, N. J.

Miss Smith is being extensively entertained, and a number of parties already given in her honor include a bridge supper given by Miss Kate Clark, of Knoxville, and last Saturday a bridge luncheon in the home of Miss Helen Scheurer, of Carnegie. Miss Blanche Doyle, of MacFarland road, Dormont, is also planning to entertain the bride-elect.

Miss Smith attended the University of Pittsburgh and is a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. Her fiance is a graduate of the Raleigh School of Mines at the University of Missouri, and a member of the Triangle Fraternity.

Rogers P.T.A. to Give Welfare Tea Tomorrow

A welfare tea will be given tomorrow afternoon by the James E. Rogers Parent-Teacher Association and Mrs. W. E. Broslus, president of the City Council Parent-Teacher Association, will be a guest. The nominating committee will make its report.

The program will be given by Miss Roberta Clements, vocalist; Eugene Phillips, violinist; Howard Phillips, accompanist, and Miss Rebecca Querrie, reader. Miss Elizabeth Wolf, principal, and Mrs. P. B. Digby, association president, will pour.

The affair is being given to replenish the association "wardrobe" which has been depleted by the distribution of clothing and shoes to needy children.

Although his part in Lady Gregory's "The Workhouse Ward," to have been given last night at Stage and Play, called for him to be in bed, Harold Geoghegan wasn't in bed there. He's just had his tonsils removed, and was in bed elsewhere.

So the play, one of three scheduled for last night, had to be postponed, and a third one-act play, given by Tech Night Drama students, was substituted.

Something new in children's parties—one on the roof garden of the Royal York Apartments. The junior Franklin Meades, who will live at the Royal York, entertained this week on the Garden for their little son, Franklin Meade, Jr. All his little boy chums of the Falk Experimental School were there.

Young Franklin is descended on his mother's side, by the way, from Gen. Lee, and on his father's from Gen. Meade. His younger brother's name is Van Lee.

One of the most interesting homes in Pittsburgh is that of the William F. Knoxes in picturesque Robin road near Fair Oaks street. In the entrance door there's a panel of old stained glass, an exact reproduction of a window in the Jerusalem Chamber in Westminster Abbey.

And the tiles in the fireplace in Mrs. Knox's bedroom, made for her by Moravian tile makers, represent musicians. Mrs. Knox is a musician herself, by the way.

500 Women Representing 12 Counties Attend Federation Meeting

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Housecleaning time! And yet nearly 500 women found the annual district meeting of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women of sufficient importance to give it their entire day yesterday at the Hotel Schenley. And the 12 federated counties of the 14 in this district sent representatives, including the new Armstrong County Federation, which was organized only last week.

The principal morning speakers included the state president, Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, of Ardmore; Mrs. Charles S. Musser, of Landsdowne, county extension chairman; Mrs. Margaret Kulp, Harrisburg, program-planning chairman, and Mrs. S. D. Pearson, New Castle, new conservation chairman. Mrs. Hamilton showed that home, school, community and church, the four topics stressed by the earliest women's clubs were of equal importance today.

Mrs. Kulp asked that women incorporate programs by foreign born in their activities and Mrs. Pearson, stressing "The New Interpretation," made it inclusive of birds as well as trees and flowers. "Plant something, save something; do something," she urged.

Asks New Programs

In the afternoon were heard James E. Sidel, of the National Child Labor Association, Mrs. Mary Thompson Denman and Miss Maud Miner. Mr. Sidel emphasized the need for watching school legislation. Road building and "a lot of government frills" can be put off, but education must be now or never, he stated.

He warned against the danger of reducing school costs to the point where there is only "spinach education—you take it or leave it." To protect the youth of the country there must be a national and state minimum wage, Mr. Sidel said, scoring women who are unwilling to give girls employed in their homes even comfortable sleeping quarters.

Mrs. Denman described "What is Going on in Harrisburg" in her usual forceful way and at the conclusion of her talk, the women sent a telegram to the Senate appropriations committee urging an amendment to the general appropriations bill providing an adequate appropriation for the Council of the Blind.

Favor Fund

Miss Miner, discussing "Personal Efficiency," said fear, exaggerated ego, lack of training and antagonistic emotions detract from personal efficiency and that confidence in an unlimited supply of thought and ability, a just appraisal of self, impersonalization, a sense of mastery and getting the other person's viewpoint are things which build constructively.

There was music on the program too, Mrs. Lucille Miller Werner, new district music chairman, making her bow in that capacity and the Beaver County Choral singing.

Braddock's Field, O.E.S., To Mark Anniversary

Braddock's Field Chapter No. 75, Order of the Eastern Star, will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary tomorrow with a card party in the afternoon and a dinner in the evening at Masonic Hall, Braddock. Among the honor guests will be Mrs. Flora E. Campbell, of Washington, right worthy grand treasurer; Mrs. Louise Lindeman, worthy grand matron of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Adaline Barnes, past grand matron, who installed the Braddock chapter.

COVERED SHOULDERS ENHANCE THE NEWEST EVENING FROCKS

THE OLD distinctions between dinner and formal evening dresses don't exist any more. Once upon a time your very best party frock had string straps over the shoulders and was cut low before and behind, in fact the lower the partier. On not so very gala ocasions, such as dining with aunts, going to the theater or restauranting, you wore a little number with a higher, often rounded neck and some sort of sleeves. But not today! You'll see the smartest young things dancing at the season's swellest parties with their shoulders all covered up, and frequently the tops of their arms lost in a swirl of puffy chiffon or taffeta. Necklines, by the same token, range from very low to very high.

* * *

THE GIRL at the left is ready for any party in her black chiffon dress with the white coin dots. She tops it with a white chiffon fichu-collar, anchored with big chiffon posies, and her upper arms are veiled with masses of deep chiffon ruffles. The dress in the center looks as though it might have been made from the black taffeta relics in the attic trunk, it's so completely Victorian. The Victorian trend is still a very living one. It's been modified, and rightly so, but we can't bear to desert anything which can give such feminine and fascinating lines as this. The big puff sleeves, slimly fitted torso and bell shaped skirt are all to the good. The only trimming is repeated sextets of taffeta covered buttons. In contrast, the girl at the right elects to be ultra-modern in a tailored chartreuse crepe. It couldn't be more twentieth century, from its angular collar which covers the shoulders, to its wide self belt.

BOGGS & BUHL

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Man About Town

Local yokels argue that if A. C. Blumenthal were freed right now from Peggy Fears—he would propose to Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, the widow . . . And I thought he was keeping a rendezvous with Beth (Leary)! . . . Delightful scene between the Blumeys in the rear of the orchestra after Act 1 of the "3-Penny Flopera" premiere at the Empahr Thittirr . . . Each with different escorts—they clasheed a la Dempsey and Firpo . . . The hambs on the stage talked so loud some of us couldn't hear what Peggy and her estranged groomatic were saying! . . . What's the idea? I mean about the beer now being peddled at the U. S. Naval Training Station at Newport. What's the Big Idea in not permitting enlisted men to quench their thirsts with the brew and permitting only officers to get woofled? . . . But here's news! . . . "Vonnie" Sheldon, the ex-Mayor's heart for ten years, is now submitting her novel—a pip of a title, too—"Forgotten Chapters" . . . Irene Castle McLaughlin is reading the Chicago-Reno time tables.

The pretty person who caused such excitement at the Metropera House and who leaped out at George Burnup Shawhawhaw at the stage entrance, and kissed his whiskers—was Mary Orr, recently rushed by "Prince" Mike Romanoff-his nut, now in a cage at the Federal Detention Penitentiary . . . The attorney for "Mrs. Kathleen Leon" tells the newspeepermen that he knows his client (Mrs. Leon) was married here to Garry Leon. Mrs. Leon alleges he was burgled by Rudy Vallee's squaw . . . What the journals haven't revealed, however is that Leon and Mrs. Vallee were school-chumps (12 years ago), and that the naughty man's dear, dear friend last Summer was a sweet person, who torched tunes at The Woodmansten Inn . . . Wonder why then—"Mrs. Kathleen Leon" didn't sue that obscure singer for all she's demanding from Mrs. Vallee-vallee-soddy—and how! . . . Money is the root of all Eves.

The Lawrence Tibbetts anticipate a $400 income tax exemption in July . . . Wonder whatever became of the big scoop (that you didn't read here) about a secret wedding of Helen Morgan and Arthur Loew? . . . Neil Vanderbilt, who chased Peter Arno with a pistol (not "heated") in Reno, would have pals believe that he is worrying the Prince of Wales over "a lovely blonde Princess of a Northern royal tribe" . . . Add worthy benefits—the one at Chanin's 46th Street Theater next Sunday, April 23rd—for Eddie Cantor's Boys' Camp upstate. J. Durante and W. W. will harmonize.

Wonder if Deacon Aylesworth knows how they are trying to slice his throat when the Hollywood meetings are over and he isn't looking? . . . West Coasters no like King Vidor's treatment of his wife in the courts . . . La Dietrich's bodyguards for her tot cost her $65 daily . . . The authors engaged recently by Metro flickers to write Ed Wynn's next movie walked out . . . Stating that nobody could write a successful magic lantern routine for Wynn—after seeing his screen test . . . A famous Hollywood star is being blamed for the closing of a speakeasy here, which "affronted her" . . . She told her Washington D. C. boy friend—and by golly, the speak was spanked!

Orchids to The Paradise Club, which invites those 16 dancing girls of George ($2.50) Hale's disbanded unit to join its new revue. . . . Thanks veddy mitch, Nicky . . . Add Legends: That Beatrice Lillie ever said: "Pulleeze!" . . . Lady Peeleeze, herself, says she never used the expression in her life. It is "Please!" (for which a show that starred her was christened) and which she hasn't said for 3 years, anyhow.

"Enchantment," the new play, is definitely off—Laurette Taylor trouble, again . . . You'd never suspect that the pretty girl that John (Journal critic) Anderson took to the "Strange Gods" premier was his niece—unless you looked at her . . . Ethel Waters and the new Cotton Club show remains the ace of the Harlem hy-dee-highs . . . Plenty of foodle-dee-doo, too . . . And a lot of Bowah-Bowah-Bowah-Bo-way! . . . "The Shim-Sham-Shimmy" is a new dance routine from Harlem—plenty pashy . . . Best hoofing routine since the Chaston . . . Ask Dorothy Fields and Jimmy McHugh (who wrote the "Blackbirds" score) to honor you with that new album of that grand revusical's records by the original members of the cast. It's delightful reminiscing . . . Steffi Duna from Hungary (imported for "3-Penny Whatera?"), and who was Francis Lederer's girl (but shifted to Romney Brent), is Lederer's bay-bee again.

The Roseland press agent says that Ruth Avon, a hostess there-will marry Paul de Montifier of Montreal (he's social and he writes, imagine?) this week . . . Miss Avon, however, is more truthful. She says it may be next Fall . . . That famous paragraph faker last week columned that he saw John Ringling, the circus magnate, walking on 57th Street . . . Mr. Ringling is an invalid, convalescing at his Sarasota, Florida, mansion . . . Another chump reported that Evelyn Nichols of "Melody" favors R. Lanthier's cigarettes . . . She doesn't smoke—and his name is Lamphier . . . See you in church April 30th.

William Hughes of the sky shows is being dickered for by movie mag-nuts . . . A movie star dove into a pool at Palm Springs and came up with his false teeth missing! He rushed by plane to Hollywood to get an extra pair before his public could see his sunken front . . . Ann Watkins, the literary agent, sent letters to most mag editors asking for sealed bids on Sinclair Lewis' next unwritten novel. She got two readable replies.

Ben Bernie was good the other Chewsday night. He chirped: "The next number will be: 'I told Ev-ry Little Star,' or, as Winchell would say: 'I Told On Ev'ry Little Star'" . . . Not bad. He pulled it just the way I wrote it . . . Trommer, the beer man, put one over on Col. Ruppert's brewery, flew over Yankee Stadium, owned by Ruppert, in case you're an out-of-towner . . . He doesn't advertise his own beer there! . . . Fred Keating was bankrupted last week. His assets, he said, consisted of bird cages valued at $1,000 and a canary bird at $1 . . . What! No bird seed?

The Nassau Daily Tribune (Bahamas) quotes "What America Owes Europe," a British book, which states that the reason the war debts are not paid is that America owes Europe cash for many things, including the fee "owed to the Allies for protecting her from Germans during the first 15 months of America's participation in the war" . . . Noel Coward, by the way, is the only Britisher I know of—who invests every penny he earns here in U. S. Gov't securities. He doesn't take a cent out of the country . . . Now is the time for Americans to have faith. Remember, your faith is your fortune!

Story of Ace To Be Made Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 19.—Trust Merian C. Cooper, an ex-war flier himself, to snatch up an aviation yarn that has been lying under the noses of Hollywood producers for several years. This is Norman S. Hall's novel, "The Balloon Buster."

"The Balloon Buster" first ran as a serial in a national magazine and RKO's decision to make the picture will be good news to the thousands of air enthusiasts who read it.

It is the factual account of the life of Frank Luke, Jr., ace war flier from Arizona, who was killed in combat at the age of 21 after destroying 18 enemy balloons and five planes in rapid succession.

Mr. McCrea

Production Manager Cooper is looking for the right adaptor to turn this thrilling story into screenable material. He plans to make of it a film glorifying the American war ace. With his own background vividly mixed with war flying—Merian C. Cooper was shot down, wounded and escaped from a German prison camp—he will give the production special attention.

It is likely the role of hero Luke will be played by either Bruce Cabot or Joel McCrea, although the film is far from the casting stage.

They were telling him about so-and-so. He is better known on Broadway for the flops he turned out. Now he has an egg ranch out in the valley here and is cashing in on the heavy duty of his hens.

"Why not?" said Sime. "He used to lay plenty of them in the show business!"

Among the smarter Easter affairs was the birthday party of Lily, 3-year-old daughter of John Lodge. Guests were Johnny Mack Browne's daughter, Miriam Hopkins' adopted boy, Elissa Landi's two little cousins, and Richard Rodgers' little girl. Miss Lodge entertained with a Mickey Mouse reel.

Lilyan Tashman hostessed a large party at Gus Arnheim's gold room over the week-end. Her Easter outfit was a blue taffeta dress with a plaid taffeta coat. Real summery is Peggy Hopkins Joyce's new outfit. The dress is of pale yellow chiffon. With it goes a large, floppy hat of the same hue.

Add to the stranger offerings of Hollywood's votaries the box Richard Arlen gets every now and then from an anonymous fan. It contains a collection of burnt matches, strings and unrelated newspaper clippings.

Hollywood's rival to Rodin, Richard Cromwell, has turned out a bust of Sylvia Sidney. Sylvia likes nicknames, too. Some of them are "Sunny" and "Funny-face." Her favorite is "Brat."

Plays and Players -:- By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"All To the Point," musical romance of the day when the Block House was part of Fort Pitt, to be presented in the Nixon all next week, without matinees, is in two acts, divided into seven scenes, in which a reception at Pittsburgh Academy is the big flash. Pittsburgh Academy was the beginning of the University of Pittsburgh, and the Cap and Gown Club of that institution is the organization that is putting on "All To the Point." Russell Connolly, who will play the role of Miss Melissa Marbury, is a sophomore. James Holland, who will portray Miss Melissa's sweetie, is a senior. Carl Swartz, junior, will play Judge Hugh Henry Brackenridge, Joseph Samson, sophomore, will be seen as John Scull, the editor, and Joseph Tormey, senior, will be in the role of George McGunnigle, a pioneer character. G. Norman Reis, author of the book, spent weeks in research in order to give his plot the color of authenticity and to incorporate in his tale a number of "first families" of Pittsburgh. The public sale of seats for "All To the Point" will open in the Nixon box office tomorrow.

* * *

Something in the way of a record is owned by "The Piccoli," puppet show that will be in the Nixon week after next, opening May 1, to give Pittsburgh a new experience in entertainment. It has been presented more than 12,000 times in 18 years. Coming from Europe last winter, it had a run of three months on Broadway. It presents a bill designed for adults, made up of music hall numbers, abbreviated comic opera, sketches parodies, song, dance, satire and travesties. While night performances are essentially for grown-ups, the matinee bills have something for the kiddies in a three-act fairy tale, "The Sleeping Beauty," with special music by Respighi, as well as different specialties.

That old announcer, Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, takes pleasure in announcing that he will gladly receive mail orders, with self-addressed stamped envelope, for what he announces as the funniest show in America." That, he would have you to know, is George M. Cohan's "Pigeons and People," with the original Lyceum Theater, New York, cast intact. It will be the attraction in the Nixon the week of May 8.

'Henry VIII' to Be Staged By Tech Thursday

The Department of Drama, Carnegie Institute of Technology, popularly known as Tech Drama School, tomorrow night will begin an elaborate presentation of Shakespeare's "Henry VIII," in commemoration of the 369th anniversary of the Bard's birth. It will be the twentieth annual event of the kind at the institution, and is to be given under the direction of B. Iden Payne, formerly head of the department, who returns annually to stage an Elizabethan play. It will be given publicly April 20, 21, 24, 25, 26, 27 and 29 in the Theater of the College of Fine Arts.

There will be matinees for students of the city schools, and a private performance for the Pittsburgh Personnel Association Saturday evening, April 22.

The acting group also will present several scenes from "Henry VIII" at the Shakespearean anniversary ceremonies in Carnegie Music Hall, Saturday morning, April 22, when a wreath is to be placed on the statue of Shakespeare in front of the museum. Col. Samuel Harden Church will preside.

CAVALCADE

THE PICTURE OF THE GENERATION

Cast of 3500
40 Featured Players

Appraised from any angle this supremely exciting drama thrusts back every challenge. It is an amazing and thrilling achievement that has an emotional sweep never before equaled.

KASPAR MONAHAN — The Critic of the Press said:— "Cavalcade" is 1933's greatest picture. For that matter, there was nothing in 1932 or 1931, or maybe further back, that could approach it. It's an achievement."

HAROLD COHEN—In the Post-Gazette said:— "Nothing that Hollywood ever produced before, can touch Mr. Coward's "Cavalcade"—truly the finest thing the movies have yet achieved, and it is the cinema's greatest triumph."

GEORGE SEIBEL—Said in the Sun-Telegraph:— "Nothing like this has ever been put on the screen before—nothing so vast or so stirring. Scene follows scene of vast and stirring impressiveness, and nothing is overdone."

OLD CITY HALL LEASE FOUGHT

Opposition to proposed renting y Allegheny County of the old ity Hall to the state for office urposes was voiced today by W. Strassburger, of the Grant uilding.

Strassburger classed the proosal as "discrimination against rivate property owners who have pent millions in constructing uildings, and who contribute to he local and state governments he taxes which support these overnments." He said:

"Old City Hall is on the tax-free list. It would be eminently unfair that tax-free structures compete against private owners who pay taxes. Were this deal to be consummated, Old City Hall should immediately become taxable for the city and school taxes.

"The structure was considered obsolete and inadequate more than 20 years ago by the city and county, neither of whom would use it. Within the past few years, the Allegheny County Board of Commissioners, claiming the county needed additional office space, would not use this old building, but erected the new County Office Building instead. Why, then, should this obsolete structure now be considered good enough to house the offices of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania?"

Church Safes Foil Yeggs, Desk Robbed

Robbers failed to open two safes n St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Station street and Collins avenue, after chopping off the combination knobs, city detectives reported today. The yeggs ransacked the pastor's study, taking $25 from a desk.

Nearly a score of churches in the East End have been looted in the last six weeks.

800 Sculptured Figures In Model of Parthenon

Reproduction Made With Utmost Care Unveiled Here

By PENELOPE REDD

The Carnegie Institute unveiled the model of the Parthenon, the supreme expression of ancient Greek art, in the Hall of Architecture yesterday. Laurance W. Hitt, architect, was commissioned a year ago to prepare a model of the Parthenon in the days of its perfection during the fifth century before the Christian era.

Miss Redd

Of the making of the model, Mr. Hitt said:

"Our Parthenon model is built on a scale of one-twentieth, the same reduction as that of the one in the Metropolitan, which was built in France about 40 years ago. This means that since the length of the original was 228 feet the model must be about 11½ feet long.

"The height of the Ionic frieze had to be reduced to approximately two inches, and the colossal statue of Athena to slightly over two feet. This great reduction in scale demanded extreme care in making the pieces of the model, and constant vigilance when assembling them.

"The material used throughout the model is plaster of paris. Patterns for all the pieces had to be made before casting, except the long moldings, which were run in soft plaster with a metal template cut to the exact profile.

"To one who makes but a casual inspection, it is not easily realized that there are nearly eight hundred sculptured figures in the building. Each of these figures I had to model in a plastic material before it was cast. The work was done from drawings and photographs pieced out by a certain amount of imagination wherever totally blank spaces occurred."

REST ORDERED FOR PRIEST

Father Cox has gone away for a few days' rest. When he came out of Mercy Hospital two months ago, his doctors warned him not to plunge into his activities at Old St. Patrick's for the aid of the unemployed and destitute. He ignored these warnings but recently found that the doctors knew what they were talking about. So, at their advice, he went away and will rest until Saturday.

In the meantime his Sun-Telegraph subscription drive is going along with gratifying success notwithstanding his absence. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

BUC PITCHING CONSISTENTLY STRONG

EVEN IN DEFEAT, the Pirate pitching was up to the gratifying standards that had been in evidence in previous games. It was by no means the fault of Steve Swetonic that yesterday's engagement in Chicago ended in the first reverse of the season, for the able right-hander gave a high-grade exhibition in his initial test over the route, and but for wobbly support in one inning would have held his own in the duel with Lonnie Warneke. When it is considered that Meine pitched excellent ball on Saturday until the cold weather affected him, and that Harris finished strongly, it may be figured that the Bucs have flashed top-notch hurling in all four games so far, and by five different flingers, with Hoyt, Chagnon, Smith and Kremer yet to show. A very encouraging start by the only department about which there was any uncertainty.

Lonnie Warneke

And it's no sign of club weakness to be held to seven hits and one run by Warneke. He's a great pitcher at any time, and the fact that he pitched 17 scoreless innings right off the reel and has allowed only one tally and 11 hits in his first two games, attests that he is in particularly good form this spring. The capture of three out of four games by the Pirates on the first road trip spells a start leaving nothing to be desired, and the home opener tomorrow will have an ideal setting, with the brightest pennant outlook in years.

ONE REASON WHY Bill Terry feels sure the Giants are stronger than in 1932 is that there is not the same lack of replacements. As Terry sees it in looking back, the slide of the club last year to a tie for sixth place was due to an absence of reserve timber. Every regular had to be in the lineup and going well for New York to win. Lindstrom, Jackson and Vergez could not be replaced.

This season, Terry has Ryan, who can play shortstop in Jackson's place and is good at second or third, besides. Jackson can play third. James can play second, third or short. Leiber has been added to the outfield. Leslie, first-base substitute, is a better ball player than he was last year, and Terry pronounces Mancuso and Richards better behind the bat than any Giant catcher in 1932. Bill predicts it will make a difference.

WHILE YOU HEAR a lot of talk to the effect that Babe Ruth is on the down grade and hasn't much farther to go, it is significant that none of it comes from the members of other American League clubs who have to play against the Bambino.

Perhaps, Ruth has lost some of his speed in the field, and possibly the dope is correct that he won't be able to play in all of the Yanks' 154 games this year. But you can take it from the men who have to compete against him that he's just as great a threat as ever up there at the plate. And his wallop always has been his main value.

IN THIS CONNECTION, Eddie Collins, now business manager of the Red Sox, voices the general American League sentiment on the subject. "We all know Ruth can't cover the ground out there that he used to cover," says Collins, "but only a player on the field or in the game can realize what the big fellow means to a team. You think you've got a ball game won, and then Babe walks up and simply overpowers you. One slap, and away goes your ball game. He still has that, you know. And the pitchers know it, and all the players on any team that is playing the Yankees know it. He hangs over you like a bucket of dynamite. It will be a great loss to baseball when Ruth goes out, but it will be a big help to the teams that have to play the Yankees, I'll tell you that."

FORCED TO DROP out of football last season because of a serious neck injury, Orville Mohler, former great quarterback for Southern California, has come through so well as a professional baseball player this spring that he is considered a sure bet to stick in the Pacific Coast League as shortstop for the Los Angeles club.

Orville Mohler

Young Mohler inherited much of his baseball ability. His father, Kid Mohler, is a former minor league star and coached the Navy team last season. The elder Mohler became famous chiefly as one of the few left-hand second basemen the game ever has known.

AS FAR AS success in the minors was concerned, throwing left-handed appeared not to be of the slightest handicap to Mohler in playing second base. He held down the keystone sack for many years in the Coast League and ranked as one of the stars of that circuit during his long career.

It was the fact of his being left-handed that kept Mohler out of the majors, for of course that style of second base play would not go over in the fast set. Except for first basemen, only two southpaws ever broke into major league infields, and they did not last long. Willie Keeler started out as a third baseman but was quickly shifted to the outfield. The Phillies presented a left-hand shortstop in Billy Hulen in 1896, but dropped him after one season.

WHERE IS THERE any sense in changing the style or the methods of an athlete if he can get results in his own way, even though that way is unorthodox? Nothing can be gained, and a great deal may be lost by lessening the effectiveness of the performer. Smart coaches in different sports admit that it's wrong to interfere with the system of a player so long as it's successful. Clark Shaughnessy, new grid coach at Chicago, works on those lines. "There is no one right way," he says. "Results are the measure of method."

THE WISDOM OF Shaughnessy's platform has been shown often right around here. Honus Wagner's stance in the batter's box was anything but a thing of beauty, but he was one of the greatest hitters that ever lived, and his feat of leading the National League eight times still stands as the record in the older loop.

A namesake in football, Hube Wagner, ignored all the accepted rules for proper tackling, while starring for Pitt, but the runner that got away from him was a rarity. Harry Greb followed none of the set boxing styles. He just fought, and fought, and fought, and he could keep it up until the cows came home. And he became champion of the world.

A FOOTBALL COACH is primarily a teacher, and mentors like Shaughnessy, knowing the solid ground of teaching, and following

'Army Polo Team Wins In Tourney

CHICAGO, April 19.—(AP.)—The Sixth Corps Area polo team, starting with a rush in the first chukker, defeated the North Shore Riding Club, of Chicago, last night, 13 to 16½, in a national indoor polo championship tournament open class match at the One Hundred Twenty-fourth Field Artillery Armory.

MEYERS BOWL STATUS STILL IN DOUBT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

With Motor Square Garden closed to boxing next week on account of the food show, and only a few more cards planned there before the indoor season ends, the attention of the ring fans here is being focussed upon the outdoor campaign.

Hickey Park, Millvale, plans to get going on either Monday, May 15, or May 22, depending upon whether or not the Garden runs up to May 15.

Greenlee Field, which made its bow as a boxing center last summer, will open at about the same time, with Jules Beck back as matchmaker. Jules was holding off to see what was going to happen to the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, which was sold under the hammer some time ago. Nothing has been done toward getting ready to open the district's pioneer outdoor arena, and there is a possibility that it will remain closed, after having folded up in mid-season last summer, so Jules has decided to cast his lot with the Hill District club again.

ARENA RAINPROOF

The Arena, on the North Side, will continue in operation all summer. According to Matchmaker Lew Raymond, an opening will be made in the roof, which can be covered with canvas on rainy nights, and the club's slogan will be "It Never Rains at the Arena." There will be no postponements, the bane of the existence of the outdoor clubs.

John Hernon again will be the promoter at Hickey Park, with Bus Vogel acting as his matchmaker.

Between Rounds

Ross Fields boxes Babe Colima and Jimmy Vaughn meets Johnny Mitchell in two 10-round bouts in Cleveland one week from tonight.

Vince Browning will box Henry Klena. Mike Kurey will oppose Anthony Parr. Whitey Rose will meet Floyd Walcott and John Petro will tangle with Woodrow White in bouts on Jim McGirr's amateur card in McKeesport tomorrow night.

Jack White, the trainer, reports Mose Rutch was anything but a well man when he entered the ring against Johnny Hinds at the Arena last Thursday night, but declined to put off the match because he didn't want to be accused of running out after losing to Tommy Paul. White, by the way, is handling Marty Gornick since the death of the latter's manager, Irish Kane.

'Tis said Ted Yarosz rather expects Tiger Joe Randall to upset the dope and beat Eddie (Kid) Wolfe in their main bout at the Arena Friday night, although Wolfe always gives Ted his toughest fights. Yarosz has fought both and believes Randall is too strong and hits too hard for Wolfe.

Frank Klaus is not going to waste any time in rebuilding Carl Montebano following the latter's two technical knockout defeats by the Alabama Kid at the Garden, but wants to match him right back with any of the middleweights with the idea of getting the Kid for him again soon. For the present, he has his eyes on Red

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A SOLOMONIC JUDGMENT—Josef Ballo, a 57-year-old beggar, of Debreczen, Hungary, lost a leg in a railroad accident. A suit for damages which he filed against the railroad was decided against him by the District Court of Debreczen, in November, 1932, upon the amazing grounds that this accident made the mendicant an even worthier object of human charity. In other words, the court found that the victim ought to be congratulated upon his good luck rather than be awarded damages.

TOMORROW: NATURE'S CROSS.

HOOSIER SWIM TEAM WINS

The Fort Wayne Y. M. C. A. swimming team is in Orange, N. J., today, where it will compete in the national Y. M. C. A. championships, and is much the better for a stiff bit of competition furnished here last night.

The Hoosier swimmers defeated the Downtown Y. M. C. A. team, 31 to 26, in a dual meet in the Y pool last night. In the feature race of the night, Dan Zehr, United States Olympic team star and national A. A. U. backstroke champion, defeated Chuck Boyer, of Carnegie Tech and the Downtown Y, and Szwasuk, of Pitt, in 1:02 2-5 seconds.

Zehr also swam as anchor man on the Fort Wayne medley relay team, which defeated a local trio of Boyer, Schmeiler and McCoy in the fast time of 1:08. The summary:

160-yard relay—Won by Fort Wayne (Smittley, Warren, Sylvester, Zehr); Pittsburgh, second (McCoy, Henman, Neff, Madden). Time—1:19 3-5.

100-yard breast-stroke—Won by Schmeiler, Pittsburgh; Murphy, Fort Wayne, second; Hopper, Fort Wayne, third. Time—:58 3-5.

HOMEWOOD MAY GET ALLEBAUGH

By TOM BIRKS

With Ray Bond, Homewood star, set to cover first base for Bill Dalzell's Homewood City League nine, the word is out that Bobby Allebaugh, who was reported headed for Brentwood, has changed his mind and will cover third for the Homewood entry. Allebaugh's signed contract has not yet reached the office of Everett Sweeney, president of the league, so Bobby is not as yet the official property of Dalzell, but he is understood to have made up his mind to cast his fortunes with the Brushton club.

It is also quite likely that another new face will be seen in Homewood toggery this season. Tom Adams, a boy from the coal regions of Madison, and who started out with Danny Taylor at West Newton, is being considered for the second base job.

Adams left West Newton four years ago to play in the Mid-West League, playing for Battle Creek in that circuit. Ed Cicotte, former White Sox star, is pitching in that loop, and according to Adams, Cicotte is still a tough problem to face at the plate.

Adams' family has moved to Pittsburgh and he wants to play here. Danny Taylor classed Adams as one of the fastest infielders that ever played for Bill Goehring, and Bill was a wonder at picking out sandlotters.

All of the City League clubs have workouts carded next Saturday afternoon.

VETERAN TRAINER DEAD

CALGARY, Alberta, April 19.—(AP.)—James McEwen, 74, at one time trainer of Tommy Burns, former world heavyweight boxing champion, and developer of many amateur Canadian sports teams, died yesterday of a heart attack.

U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM PICKED

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—The United States Lawn Tennis Association, taking no chances against the little-known abilities of Mexican players and the high altitude of Mexico City, have named four veterans of international play to meet Mexico in the first round of Davis Cup competition in the North American zone.

Although Ellsworth Vines has not been called on, Wilmer Allison, hero of the gallant stand against France in the challenge round last year, heads a strong team selected by Bernon S. Prentice and the Cup committee. Clifford Sutter, George M. Lott, Jr., and John Van Ryn are the other members. The matches will be played at Mexico City May 5, 6 and 7.

Allison and Sutter probably will play the singles and Lott and Van Ryn the doubles. The latter two withdrew from the singles competition in the Mason and Dixon tournament at White Sulphur Springs to concentrate on team play.

To save expenses a non-playing captain will not be sent with the team. Allison will serve in that capacity, with Van Ryn as manager and Arthur Bliss Lane, a resident of Mexico City, representing the U. S. L. T. A.

ARGENTINA TEAM SET

BUENOS AIRES, April 19.—(AP.)—Three young dentists have been selected to represent Argentina in the inter-zone Davis Cup tennis finals to be played in the United States late in May.

Adrian Zappa, Americo Cataruzza and Adhelmar Echeverria, ranked respectively second, third and fifth in Argentina, were designated for the team which will meet the survivor of the North American zone competition among the United States, Mexico, Cuba and Canada.

Pittsburgh today welcomed home one of the most impressive clubs in the city's baseball history. George Gibson brought his crack entry back home in second place in the National League race despite a tough defeat sustained yesterday in Chicago, where an apparent bad decision by Charles Rigler caused a tempest in Gibby's family circle.

Pirate boosters will not get a chance to see their favorites in action today, this date being the conventional open day which precedes the home opener. At Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon the Buccos will cross bats with Donie Bush's Reds in the first contest of a three-game series. Bill Swift will pitch for the Bucs, Boss Gibson stated this morning.

A pounding rain fell on Pittsburgh as the Pirates pulled into town. Skipper Gibson looked at the skies apprehensively and later he decided to call off the long workout scheduled for Forbes Field. But the day was not wasted. Gibby ordered his pitchers and catchers to the Trees gymnasium of the University of Pittsburgh where the batterymen were put through a beneficial drill at mid-day. The Pirate manager secured the permision of the University officials for the use of the gymnasium.

SWIFT, JOHNSON READY

The home opener is likely to bring a right-hand pitching duel between the same two youngsters who worked the jump-off game in Cincinnati last Wednesday, Swift and Si Johnson. Both are in fine fettle.

Gibby's stars were near top form, but somewhat peeved as they dropped anchor at the home port. Their upset feelings were due to the decision given by Umpire Rigler in seventh inning yesterday of what at that time was a scoreless battle between the Bruins and Buccos. It has been the Pirates'

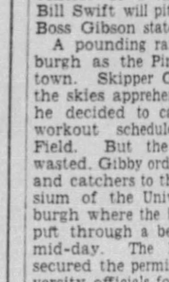
BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK



Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Well, folks, what I've observed, we've got another baseball fan in the White House. Mr. Roosevelt not only knows a foul line from a fielder's choice, but he's hep to the finer points of the game. Why, I even caught him howling at me the other day. That gives me a laughing average of 1.000. The best I could pry off Mr. Hoover was two smiles and a snicker. But Mr. Hoover was a great ball fan, too. He not only kept a scorecard, but he'd figure out on the margin the cubic yards of gravel in the baselines, how to consolidate the umpires so one of them could run the game from left field, and other efficiency ideas.

I wouldn't say Mr. Roosevelt was the best first-ball-thrower-outer I've ever seen. But that won't make any difference to the country, as Jim Farley, the Postmaster General, does all the administration's throwing out in other fields.

Vice President Garner has promised to come and see us play often, too. Garner's got so much time on his hands now he is waiting for doubleheaders already.

GOMEZ CONTINUES MASTERY OVER ATHLETICS

YANKEE HURLER WINS GREAT SLAB DUEL

Associated Press.

In a season already notable for its good early pitching performances, Vernon Gomez, of the Yankees, and George Earnshaw, of the Athletics, have accomplished a feat that tops all the other low-hit performances so far.

This pair hooked up in a mound duel yesterday and after nine fast innings they had allowed only three hits apiece. The Yankees won, 2 to 1. This feat hardly approaches that famous game in 1917 when Fred Toney, of Cincinnati, and Jim Vaughn, of the Chicago Cubs, battled through nine innings without a hit for either team, but it still stands as something like a record for recent seasons.

GOMEZ BRILLIANT

Gomez had all the better of yesterday's argument. He whiffed eight Athletics and the only run scored against him was unearned. It came after a walk and an error by Joe Sewell, the first Yankee misplay of the season, had put Max Bishop on second. Jimmy Foxx rapped out a double to bring him home.

The New York runs, which brought the Yanks their fifth straight victory this season and Gomez his tenth victory in a dozen starts against the Athletics since he came into the league, both were scored in the fourth. A walk to Sewell, Babe Ruth's fly and singles by Lou Gehrig and Ben Chapman sent one in and Gehrig scored while Chapman was being run down between second and third on a double play that ended the inning.

The American League's two "rebuilt" teams provided the rest of the excitement for the junior circuit yesterday. The Boston Red Sox made it two straight over Washington by a 6-4 count and the Chicago White Sox belted out a 12-0 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

RED SOX WIN

The Red Sox came from behind to score four runs after two were out in the seventh inning, a wild throw by Earl Whitehill, Senator flinger, paving the way for the rally.

The Pale Hose pounded Tommy Bridges from the hill in three innings, piled up 15 hits and received the benefit of five Detroit errors as they accumulated the biggest run total so far this season. Al Simmons and Jimmy Dykes made three hits apiece.

George Blaeholder, of the St. Louis Browns, won the fourth game for himself. He blanked the Cleveland Indians with five hits in a neat duel with Mel Harder.

After five postponements and a tie game, the New York Giants finally recorded a victory and promptly went to the top of the National League standing as the Pittsburgh Pirates suffered their first setback.

The Giants nosed out the Phillies, 3 to 2, checking a Philadelphia rally with some snappy relief pitching by Luque and Carl Hubbell when big Fred Fitzsimmons began to weaken.

PIRATES BEATEN

The Pirates found Lonnie Warneke in form and went down, 3-1, before the Chicago Cubs. Warneke made it 17 consecutive scoreless innings before Gus Suhr touched him for a homer in the ninth.

Two other National League games were rained out.

Tube City, Dormont Nines Win Openers

Four W. P. I. A. L. baseball teams swung into action yesterday, with McKeesport and Dormont being returned victors.

At Memorial Field, McKeesport, the Tubers defeated the East McKeesport entry, 4 to 2, in a fine slab duel between Ford, of McKeesport, and Foreman, of East McKeesport. Ford limited the opposition to two safe hits while his mates collected nine scattered ones in seven innings.

Dormont won a slugfest from Carnegie, 13 to 9. The victors collected 10 safe hits, but fielded raggedly behind Brown, who gave up only three hits. He passed five

As Pirates of '33 Arrived in Town

MORNING ALREADY? . . . BILL BRUBAKER . . . HOW IT RAINED FOR THIS CALIFORNIA RECRUIT!

When the Pittsburgh Pirate special rolled in this morning, preparatory to opening of the home baseball season tomorrow, Brubaker, sensational rookie from U. C. L. A., awoke, looked out at the rain, and said to the Sun-Telegraph photographer:

"Make this a talkie and I'll sing 'California, Here I Come.'"

WAITE HOYT, NEW PITCHER . . . 'SO THIS IS PITTSBOIGH!'

Thus spoke the new Bucco slab artist, who is a typical New Yorker and was for 10 years a star pitcher for the Yankees, as he spruced up for his new home town, despite a deluge of rain as he peeped out of his Pullman. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

PIRATES BACK IN HOME PORT

misfortune to have Rigler decide against them on more than one big occasion. Boss Gibson goes back a long distance in this connection. Not that there is any malice in Cy, for there is none; he just seems to have the faculty of being in the wrong spot or "guessing" wrong.

SWETONIC UPSET

Rigler's ruling yesterday upset Steve Swetonic so forcibly that the battle was decided on the succeeding batter. After Steve had called Rigler everything short of a burglar he kicked things around the box and then flipped up a ball which Gabby Hartnett kissed for two bases to score two runs and decide the duel between Steve and Lonnie Warneke. The score was 3 to 1.

One was out in the seventh when Grimm grounded to Piet. Tony made a mess of the roller and Lefty was on base. Jurges then hit a twister to Traynor, who fumbled momentarily, quickly enough recovering to pass the ball to Suhr in time for a putout. Gus had to stretch for the ball, but this he did.

Gus declared after the contest that he could make an affidavit to the effect that Jurges was duly and officially retired.

Rigler, in a manner that was not altogether positive, called Jurges safe and the fight was on. He was immediately surrounded by fuming Buccos who demanded redress. There really should be something done towards making the officials get in the right spot to give rulings and there should be an order promulgated to make them move around. Officials like Klem and Stark do not need to be so advised but others are lacking in their actions.

GABBY'S HIT WINS

Swetonic was hardly in a fit condition to outsmart anybody when he finally resumed and Gabby smeared his double against the wall to put the game on the ice.

Suhr saved the Buccos from a shutout by hitting a homer in the ninth. Yes, it would have been a hard game for Warneke to have lost, but this does not excuse inferior work on the part of the umpires. Every player on the Pirate bench who had a closeup view of the Jurges play contended that Suhr kept his foot on the bag and completed the play.

The Buccos passed up a golden opportunity to take the lead in the fourth. Vaughan's double with one out and Traynor on first put runners on first and third, but Piet was a setup for Warneke and Grace could not help.

Chilly Sauce

From a scientific standpoint the fight between Warneke and Swetonic was a treat. Each pitcher allowed seven hits. The contest, however, was hardly a scientific treat to 10,000 women and girls who cheered all the easy plays and foul tips made by the home boys.

The fair sex, nevertheless, showed remarkable loyalty in sitting through the game. The wind and fog off Lake Michigan were strong enough to make everybody uncomfortable. Judge Landis was among those who stayed to the finish.

The speeches delivered by Swetonic and Gibson to Rigler cannot be reproduced with or without permission of the copyright owners. The censors won't pass them.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The businessmen's associations of the South Side and Duquesne will pay tribute to their high school basketball champions at banquets to be held this evening.

Duquesne High, winner of the W. P. I. A. L. championship, will be honored in the Duquesne Steel Works dining room, while South High School, winner of the City championship and semi-finalist in the P. I. A. A. playoffs, will be feted in the German United Evangelical Church, 1722 Jane street.

A list of prominent speakers has been arranged for each affair. John R. Davies, of the Duquesne Trust Company, one of the staunchest supporters of the W. P. I. A. L. champions, will be toastmaster at Duquesne, and Bill Finkel will serve in a similar capacity at the South Side banquet.

Clarence E. (Buddy) Overend, graduate manager of athletics at Carnegie Tech, and Howard Harpster, football coach at the same school, will be the principal speakers at Duquesne. The South Side list of speakers include Dr. H. C. Carlson, basketball coach at Pitt, and Max Hannum, basketball coach at Carnegie Tech.

South High eliminated Duquesne from the state championship in the P. I. A. A. playoffs held in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. South fell before Altoona at State College in the semi-finals.

School Notes

The Ambridge High Scohol football squad, class A champion of the W. P. I. A. L. last fall, begins spring practice at Ambridge today under the direction of Coach Moe Rubenstein. Ambridge would like to arrange a spring game. For information call Ambridge 191.

D. W. Copeland, popular faculty manager of Charleroi High School, is seeking an opponent for November 4, the only open date on the Cougars' slate. Copeland has been negotiating with Westinghouse and South High, of the City League, but neither of the last-named schools are permitted to play night football. Westinghouse may be booked for a daylight contest on November 5.

Redstone Township High has a flock of dates open on its football card for next fall. September 29 or 30, October 6 or 7, October 13 or 14 and October 27 or 28 are some of the choice dates available for high school teams. Dates may be arranged by writing Redstone Township High School, Republic, Pa.

Two spring football games will be played by Coach Preston Ditty's Monessen Greyhounds. The opponents will be Washington and Redstone Township.

South High has two dates open on its football card, according to Coach Grover C. Washabaugh. They are September 22 or 23 and November 10 or 11. Teams interested in booking the Orioles call Washabaugh at Hemlock 0310.

IRISH GELDING DERBY HOPE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 19.—(AP.)—Only one imported horse, Omar Khayyam, ever won the Kentucky Derby. He was victorious in 1927. Moreover, just one imported horse ever ran second, Star Hawk, in 1916, and just one imported horse ever ran third, Under Fire, in 1919.

Coincidentally following this unit rule, only one imported horse is among the 118 nominees for this year's Derby to be raced at Churchill Downs May 6. He is Knockaway, a gelding imported from Ireland as a yearling.

Knockaway, the Derby candidate of W. E. Smith, has attracted considerable following at the Downs. Running in the middle of a muddy track, he was worked a mile yesterday in 1:50, breezing.

Roscoe Goose, who was the jockey aboard Donerail in the 1913 Derby which Donerail won at record Derby odds of more than 90 to 1, returned to the saddle yesterday to pilot Flying Cadet through a three-quarter mile workout in 1:19.

Casts Removed From Carr's Ankles

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—(AP.)—The casts of the fractured ankles of Bill Carr, world record-holding Olympic 400-meter champion, have been removed and physicians said the black-thatched Arkansas flier may be out of bed in a week.

The University of Pennsylvania ace quarter-miler, injured in an automobile accident last month, was shocked to hear of the death of another Olympic titlist, George Saling, stellar hurdler, in a car collision last Saturday. Bill said he and Saling became good friends on the coast last summer.

SEEDED NET STARS WIN

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 19.—(AP.)—Seven of the eight quarter-final brackets in the men's singles division of the thirteenth annual Mason and Dixon tennis tournament have been filled without a break in the list of seeded players.

Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, winner of the North and South title at Pinehurst last week and favorite for the Mason and Dixon crown as well, again was idle and must play three matches today to catch up with the rest of the field.

All of the other seeded players advanced in straight sets although Sidney B. Wood, blonde New Yorker who narrowly escaped defeat in the first round, was carried to deuce sets in both the second and third rounds. Moving into the quarter-finals with him were Berkeley Bell, Frank Shields, Marcel Rainville, Canadian Dovis Cup player; J. Gilbert Hall, Lester Stoefen and Gregory Mangin.

The pairing today will pit Shields against Rainville, Wood against Hall and Stoefen against Mangin. Bell probably will face Sutter, assuming the Southerner defeats his first two opponents, W. Lipman and Dr. Philip B. Hawk, of New York, former national veterans' singles champion.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 19.—(AP.)—More than 30 of the leading women swimming stars of the United States and Canada will lay seige to nine national A. A. U. senior titles tonight in the pool of the Buffalo Athletic Club.

At least seven of the nine titles awarded by the A. A. U. will be won during the four-day meet as only Dorothy Poynton, of Los Angeles, Cal., the lowboard diving champion, and the medley relay team of the Women's Swimming Association of New York City will defend their crowns.

A strong entry from the Pittsburgh district, the Carnegie Library Club team of Homestead, will be watched with interest. Included on the team will be Lenore Kight, Anna Mae Gorman, Johanna Gorman and Louise Clark. The four will make up the 400-meter relay team.

Miss Kight also will compete in the 100 and 500-yard events and Johanna Gorman will enter the 100-yard back stroke.

MILLER BREAKS HAND, LOSES

SEATTLE, April 19.—(AP.)—Abie Israel, Seattle Jewish featherweight, may get a crack at Freddie Miller's National Boxing Association recognized featherweight title, if there is "enough money in sight."

The statement about the money was made by Pete Reilly, manager of the Cincinnati boxer, last night after Miller had lost to Israel in a six-round non-title bout in which the champion broke his left hand in the second round. Reilly suggested 15 rounds for such a bout, if it should be arranged, insisting "no more short fights for Miller."

Bruce, Jack Wilson and Curley Klaas as opponents.

Louie Severo, Meadville lightweight, is laid up with injuries suffered when he stepped on a nail. Along with his brother, Patsy Severo, he is being managed by Al Suttle.

The state amateur boxing championships were held in Uniontown last year and will be put on in Pittsburgh for the first time on May 4, 5, 6 and 8, when they will be fought in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion.

Monte Sirko, former local boxer, has branched out as a manager with Casey Rhodes, Negro southpaw middleweight, whom he would like to match against Jack Wilson. Jimmy Belmont or Carl Montebano.

This Phil Rafferty fellow, who meets Billy Holt in one of the two 10-round bouts at the Arena, Friday night, has boxed Benny Leonard and Paulie Walker, among others. He holds a draw with Walker.

The Arena, which already has Tony Herrera and Tracey Cox booked for its main bout Friday night of next week, is arranging to bring back Pete de Grasse against either Jimmy Thomas or Jackie Wilson the following week. Pete made a big hit with the fans last week, when the decision given Thomas over him was wildly booed.

Jack Makes Tar Offer For Bout

The German battler, who weighed 190 pounds and appeared to be in splendid shape, also boxed with Bill Higgins, another member of his troupe.

Dempsey announced at a dinner tendered him and Schmeling he came here to offer Sharkey $150,000 for a late summer bout with the winner of the Schmeling-Baer bout. Sharkey did not attend the affair.

In the main bout, Babe Hunt, former Ponca City, Okla., heavyweight, put on a strong closing drive to shade Red Barry, of Washington, in 10 rounds.

Lu Blue Is Added To Dodger Roster

BOSTON, April 19.—(INS.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today had three first basemen with the signing of Lu Blue. Blue, declared a free agent by the White Sox last fall, previously played with the Tigers and Browns.

Joe Judge, the regular first sacker, was spiked in Philadelphia. Del Bissonette, his understudy, has not been hitting. Blue or Bissonette will be released May 15 when the roster must be cut to 23 players.

the same common-sense methods, usually get results. If one of their teams fails, it is not because it has been poorly taught. There is too strong an inclination to blame the coach rather than the players for gridiron failures.

Knute Rockne, who was a chemistry tutor as well as a football coach without an equal, and who knew all about teaching, used to say that when a football team failed to master its formations they fired the coach, but when a student flunked in college they fired the student.

RUNNING IS SUPPOSED to be a young man's game, particularly over the distance routes, but there's old Clarence De Mar in the Boston marathon again today, hurling another defi at Father Time. Each time he starts, whether he wins or finishes among the trailers, he furnishes new evidence of the remarkable qualities that make him one of the physical marvels of this or any other age. You might search the world over in vain for another man still able to run marathons 22 years after he won his first one. That's what De Mar is doing today. It was in 1911 that he won the big annual Boston event for the first time. That might be the last you would hear of most runners, but 11 years later Clarence started a string of three straight victories, which he hung up in 1922-23-24. Even then he wasn't done, for he won again in 1927 and 1928, and came back to win for the seventh time in 1930. His poorest performance in 13 starts was made last year, when he finished eighteenth. And today, at the age of 44, he tries it again for the fourteenth time. No history of running marvels will be complete unless De Mar is given a chapter of all his own.

TECH STAR SHARES LEAD IN HEARST SHOOT

HELMUT BUSE SCORES 197 IN EVENT

By LIEUT. COL. JESS KRUEGER

CHICAGO, April 19.—Winners of national and sectional championships in the 1932-33 William Randolph Hearst Rifle Trophy matches were announced today by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Jr., commanding the Sixth Corps Area, U. S. A., and official referee of the competition.

For the first time in the 12 years of the matches, New York University of New York City captured the senior title with a score of 948 points out of a possible 1,000. Cornell University and the University of Washington, Seattle, the latter school winner of the title last year, were tied for second place with 938 points.

BUSE, COOK TIE

Helmut W. Buse, of Carnegie Tech, and Don Cook, of the University of Washington at Seattle, tied for the high individual score in the senior ranking with marks of 197. Arrangements are being made for a special match between the pair to determine the champion.

The Carnegie Tech team, led by Buse, finished third in the eastern section with a score of 937, with the University of Pittsburgh's No. 2 team finishing sixteenth and the Pitt No. 1 team No. 23. The Carnegie Tech No. 2 team placed thirty-third.

GREENBRIER VICTOR

Accomplishing the remarkable achievement of winning first place for the third consecutive time, the Greenbrier Military School, of Lewisburg, W. Va., takes permanent possession of the trophy in the military school division.

In the junior class, Pasadena College, of Pasadena, Cal., had to roll up a mighty score of 988 points to beat the Western Kentucky State Teachers' College, Bowling Green, Ky., by 7 points. This is the second consecutive triumph for the westerners.

More than 500 teams competed for honors this year, a larger total than any previous championship in the history of the shoot. This is the greatest inter-school competition in the United States, far exceeding that of any other sport or scholastic activity. The winners of the Hearst matches are generally recognized as champions for the year.

NET RANKINGS REVISED

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—The ranking committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association today presented its revised list for 1932, which leaves untouched the first 10 in both men's and women's singles, but shifts around considerably, especially among the women, the lower ranked players. No change was made in men's doubles.

The singles lists are headed by Ellsworth Vines and Helen Jacobs. Helen Wills Moody is unranked.

The committee made its first report in January, but at the general convention of the U. S. L. T. A. in February sought and received permission to withdraw its original list and seek further information on several players.

In making the request, Samuel Hardy, committee vice chairman, indicated there would be no change among the top-flight players, and the convention granted the time extension, referring the list back to the committee "with power to act." The list presented today therefore is the official ranking, and not subject to change. The revised list:

Carnegie Tech Holds First Grid Workout With Former Star As Coach

RAIN HAMPERS TARTAN DRILL

By JESS CARVER

An uninvited guest, as unwelcome as he was uninvited, sat in on the opening of Carnegie Tech's spring football practice yesterday, the first the Tartans have had for three years, and messed up the proceedings frightfully. The interloper was this guy Jupiter Pluvius, who has a habit of putting the old finger on sport events, usually to the chagrin and discomforture of all concerned, unless it happens to be a big league ball club with a pitching staff in need of an extra day of rest.

So Howard Harpster and Don Lovewell, the new Tartan mentors, had to peer between the rain drops at their Skibo charges in the Tartan Bowl yesterday afternoon. The initial workout was rather an informal affair, being devoted to a kicking and passing session, with frequent stops for the benefit of the camera men. The drill lasted a trifle longer than half an hour.

SCHEDULE UNCERTAIN

The new coaches, who take over the reigns at Tech, their alma mater, after a successful stand at Geneva College, watched the athletes from the sidelines for a spell, then called 'em together for a short talk and sent them back to the dressing room.

With the practice field soggy and the weather uncertain, Coach Harpster was undecided about calling another drill for today, but plans to have the boys out for sure later in the week.

Yesterday's rain did the other varsity squads little, if any, good. The Pitt and Tech trackmen and netters, with inaugural engagements booked for Saturday, were forced to hold themselves in check.

Coach Carl Olsen, of the Pitt track and field squad, held a few time trials yesterday and planned others for today. The Pitt trackmen meet Temple in Philadelphia Saturday and will leave for Philly Friday night.

Saturday, Pitt's netters are to take on Grove City. A tentative lineup has been selected, with Billy O'Loughlin slated for the No. 1 post, Nate Ganger at No. 2, Al Volmer at No. 3, Billy Slocum at No. 4 and write your own ticket on the other two positions.

GOLF TEAM PICKED

Art Sekay, Claude McKee, Henry Decker and Billy Vornocy will represent Pitt against Duquesne in the opening intercollegiate golf match of the season over the Oakmont course Friday afternoon.

Coach Jock Sutherland, at Pitt, has made it known that the second annual Pitt football clinic, booked for May 6 at the Pitt Stadium, will be strictly an invitation affair. Jock will handle the invitation list himself. Some of the Panthers failed to cotton to the idea of showing off before rivals, as was the case last spring.

Knockouts Mark Lyceum Ring Show

In the first knockout affair, Whitey Schramm, of the Lyceum, stopped George Brody, of the Linwood Club, in the second round. In the second, Steve Levendowski, Y. H. M. A. boxer, won by a technical knockout over Walk Scislowski, of the Lyceum, in the first round. Other results follow:

SPORTS BILLS FACE PINCHOT

HARRISBURG, April 19.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today figuratively is in the position of a man being called upon simultaneously to umpire a baseball game, referee a football match and officiate at a boxing bout.

It's for him to decide whether Pennsylvania communities are to have the right to say whether they want Sunday afternoon baseball and football, and whether championship boxing bouts are to go 15 or 10 rounds.

Awaiting his action are the Schwartz Bill, providing for local option on Sunday afternoon baseball and football, and the Steedle Bill adding five rounds to the present championship bout limit of 10 stanzas.

Meanwhile, the House passed, 111 to 69, and sent to the Senate the Baldi-Peters bill to permit horse racing and pari-mutuel betting. Revenue from a 5 per cent tax on wagers would be used for mothers' assistance.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

"You are always writing about what to do with the left arm and left side, but surely the right is important also. Even if we admit that the left should dominate the stroke, still the correct use of the right is equally important. What about something on this?"

Of course, so long as we swing a golf club with two hands, in order to swing it properly both hands must be used correctly. But with most players the effort must be to subdue the right at certain important stages, rather than to direct it to positive activity. It has been said that the correct swing is a wholly artificial, unatural procedure. In the sense that a naturally right-handed person must force the left side and discourage the right, this is certainly true.

Bobby Jones

It seems to me that this fact alone is sufficient reason for stressing the left side most strongly. Since it must be used and yet it is unnatural to use it, it requires more conscious direction than the right. A right-handed person, swinging a right-handed golf club will not need to think about hitting with his right hand. He will need only to make certain that he does not begin to use it too soon, or incorrectly. On the other hand, if he does not think about moving his left side it will surely get in the way and gum things up.

Grantland Rice has cited to me several instances of players he knows who have shown decided improvement when forced by accident or misfortune to play with the right arm alone. My own acquaintance embraces a number who have resorted to putting with one hand because they could not swing the club smoothly with two. This is added evidence of the damage the left can do if it refuses to move. And it will always refuse to move if the right insists on doing the work for it.

My conception of the correct swing is built around the one thought of making the left side move, both in taking the club back and in swinging it through. This is the main idea. The use of the right hand, though important, is yet a sub-heading. It has to be thought of only in order to keep it from overpowering the left and asserting itself in a disastrous way.

CORRECT BACKSWING

The correct backswing originates with a turn of the body away from the ball, a movement which is controlled and actuated by the left side. As the body movement begins to pull the hands away the left arm begins to push the club back. The average golfer, swinging the club in what for him is a natural way, picks it up with his right hand. Immediately his club goes up over his shoulders. The left side, left arm, and the all-important wind-up of the hips is forgotten. The hips fail to turn because there is nothing to force or even encourage them almost indefinitely without the aid of the body-turn.

BUYING SWEEPS STOCK PRICES FORWARD

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP)—The stock market was swept upward on the biggest wave of buying since September today.

Metal shares generally led the rise, particularly coppers, silver issues and steel, as announcement of inflationary steps at Washington prompted feverish shifting of funds into commodities and shares to take advantage of prospective decreased purchasing power of the dollar. Gilt-edged bonds naturally weakened, as funds were shifted out of that form of investment.

The market had more than inflation prospects to be bullish about, with steel production rising to 23 per cent of capacity, the highest in about a year, and a number of executives making optimistic statements at annual stockholders' meetings, but the inflationary movement was the chief motivating factor, as foreign currencies rose swiftly against the dollar, and commodity markets boomed.

There was a decided tendency to shift out of public utility shares into shares of companies with inventories of materials which were appreciating in value, on the theory that public utility rates would be slow in adjusting themselves to a higher price level. A number of public utility executives have viewed prospective inflation rather hopefully, however, in expectation that it might tend to stifle the widespread agitation for lower rates. While railroad rates are also fixed, the rail shares responded optimistically, presumably on the prospect of stimulation of business by the rise in prices.

While Wall street has viewed inflationary agitation with mixed emotions, many prominent quarters with misgivings, some leading banking quarters expressed high hopes today over the decision of the administration to take the inflation problem in hand. This, it was felt, would forestall ill-advised monetary legislation, and would assure proper safeguards. Some conservative quarters recommended caution, recalling that the brisk rise in sterling prices in the British speculative markets on suspension of gold payments there in 1931, was followed by a substantial reaction. On the whole, however, Wall street was in high spirits.

WHEAT JUMPS THREE CENTS

CHICAGO, April 19.—Wheat jumped almost 3 cents a bushel at the opening today. Washington reports that the Cabinet had approved an inflation policy was the main stimulating factor, together with an abrupt rise of 9 points in British exchange. Opening 1¼ to 2⅞ cents up, wheat later fluctuated violently within the initial limits. Corn started ⅜ @ 1 cent higher, and subsequently showed additional gains.

All the grain pits were temporarily overwhelmed with buying orders, and as a result, wheat, oats and barley quickly outdid the season's previous top prices. Rushes to purchase, however, led soon to enormous selling to realize profits, and the struggle between contending forces was accompanied by rapid swings that in some cases amounted to as much as 2 cents a bushel within a few minutes for wheat. When the market regained comparative poise, wheat trade was whirling along at about 2 cents above yesterday's finish.

Next to wheat, barley showed the greatest buoyancy, and at one stage was up 3¾ cents. Corn and oats chiefly reflected wheat strength.

LABOR SUPPLY GREAT FACTOR IN PAY RATES

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, April 19.—We have seen that the wage rates and short-term earnings of labor are fixed somewhere between the maximum set by productivity and the minimum set by standards of living.

The point depends upon the bids of employers and the offers of laborers, according to the relative abundance of the several factors, of production, their technical efficiency, and the costs and bargaining power of the laborers.

In the working out of these forces, the quantity of labor power for sale is important. It depends not only upon the number of laborers, but also upon their native abilities and training. This affects both the employers' willingness to bid, and the laborers' pressure to sell.

Finally, the number of laborers multiplied by the average earnings per laborer, gives us the total "share" of the national "dividend," which is actually distributed among the workers of the nation.

POPULATION TENDENCY

The old economies, however, saw little besides the mere number of laborers, and, following Malthus, they accepted the theory that population tends to increase so rapidly that laborers are generally forced to accept subsistence wages.

Few, if any, now hold that idea. Yet there is a law of population, and it has an important bearing on wages. This law may be stated as follows:

At any given stage of industrial development, population tends to equal the number which can be supported according to the prevalent standard of living and distribution of income.

BIRTH RATE DROPS

There can be no question as to the power of population to increase much more rapidly than the supply of the material things men need. But it does not do so, unless in such regions as China and India.

On the one hand, education, diffusion of well being, and economic independence of women reduce the birth rate. Marriages are later and families smaller. And we restrict immigration. On the other hand, improvements in division of labor and industrial technique greatly increase the supply of means of subsistence.

STANDARDS REACHED

Wage rates tend to become standardized within large groups. This is due partly to inertia, partly to human jealousies, and partly to the leveling effect of collective bargaining by organized groups. Certainly wages do not differ in proportion to the differences among individual workers.

But we do find "differentials" wherever piecework or bonus methods of payment are used. Also some laborers are always the ones to be laid off first or hired first. The least productive and lowest paid laborer in each class is the "marginal" man.

The broadest groups or classes of labor are: (1) Responsible mental (superintendents, etc.); (2) routine mental (clerks, etc.); (3) responsible manual (skilled mechanics); (4) routine manual ("common labor").

To some extent, men shift from one class to another, but at any given time, the great masses within these groups are fairly separate, and they have been called "noncompetitive groups." Perhaps we may think of these groups as each having a separate labor market, a distinct scale of wages, and its own "margin."

RAISING METHODS

How can wage rates be raised in a way that can last? Only by increasing the demand for labor through adding to its productivity or by decreasing the supply of labor through increasing its costs or its bargaining power.

Wage rates will be at a maximum wherever we have the following conditions: Maximum total industrial product (reasonably large quantity of products and prices governed by the law of supply and demand), laborers relatively few, highly efficient and strongly organized, and standards of living high.

It is well ever to remember that laborers are human beings and make up the bulk of a nation's citizens, so that the importance of the best possible standards of living is apparent.

Monopoly or extortion on the part of enterprisers, which would withhold from laborers any of their economic share, should especially be stamped out. Education and public employment bureaus—to say nothing of much protective legislation — may be justified on economic grounds.

Except by such means as the foregoing, however, wages cannot be raised or maintained without impinging upon the minimum shares necessary to secure for society the services of the other factors of production.

Loree Lays Railroad Burdens to Politics

SCRANTON, Pa., April 19. — (INS.)—Three major antagonists confront the American railroads today, according to L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad.

The railroad executive, in an address before the local Chamber of Commerce last night, charged that the carriers have waged a losing battle for 60 years against "the selfish politician, unionized labor and the shipper." He advocated many reforms, particularly greater freedom from legislative restraint, as a means of protection.

Craig Gets Post With Anchor Lite

Appointment of E. M. Craig as sales promotion manager of the Anchor Lite Appliance Company was annaunced today by H. W. Goldstein, president of the company.

Steel Buys Scrap From N. Y. Central

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—The United States Steel Corporation has purchased a heavy tonnage of scrap steel from the New York Central Railroad, it was learned today in authoritative quarters.

The exact amount of material involved and the price per ton could not be learned, but it was understood in steel quarters that the transaction was one of the largest negotiated in the past year or more, probably amounting to about 50,000 tons.

STEEL OUTPUT EXPANDING RAPIDLY

NEW YORK, April 19.—Iron Age says:

Steel ingot production this week has risen to 23 per cent of the country's capacity from 19½ per cent last week, and may be further increased within a few days by the starting up of the Carnegie Steel Company's rail mill on a recent order from the Erie Railroad. The present rate is not only the fourth consecutive weekly increase, but it is the highest in about a year and is above the monthly average for any month since March, 1932, as computed by the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The chairman of the United States Steel Corporation on Monday announced a 21 per cent rate for the corporation's subsidiaries. Some of the smaller companies with a narrower range of products are working at considerably higher rates. Outstanding are the Detroit independent plant, which is at 100 per cent of ingot capacity, and a northern Ohio sheet producer, which is running at 50 per cent. Automobile orders are responsible for these high operations, some motor car plants having expanded their schedules to such an extent as to work overtime.

SCRAP PRICES RISE

Almost every district except the Atlantic seaboard has shown marked improvement within the past week. The Pittsburgh district is now at 18 per cent. Aggregate orders received by some steel companies thus far in April are considerably in excess of their entire March bookings.

Accompanying the further gain in production is a strengthening of prices of raw materials, with advances in scrap in nearly all important districts. Pig iron prices are firmer in the principal producing districts. Makers of galvanized sheets have announced an advance of $2 a ton to 2.70 cents a pound, Pittsburgh, and 2.80 cents, Chicago, effective at once. On the other hand, the price of steel plates at Pittsburgh has declined $2 a ton, but this is a belated recognition of marked weakness that has existed for several months in the Eastern section of the country.

ORDERS DIVERSIFIED

Although automobile tonnage and releases of tin plate by can manufacturers continue to be the outstanding influences in raising steel production, there are evidences of greater diversification of orders. Some of the new steel business seems to represent delayed March demand and is plainly of a seasonal character, but there is almost a complete absence of speculative buying, except to some extent in pig iron, and virtually all orders are for immediate shipment, the urgent demands making it difficult for mills to meet delivery requirements.

Structural steel awards this week have shrunk to 4,200 tons, and it is apparent that there will be no immediate revival of importance in construction work without federal aid.

POWER OUTPUT INCREASES

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—Electric power output last week rose to 1,409,603,000 kilowatt hours from 1,399,367,000 in the previous week, the Edison Electric Institute announced today. The decrease from the corresponding period last year was 4.8 per cent, against a 4.5 per cent loss in the previous week. The latter was the smallest percentage decline from the previous year recorded for several months.

Output declines as shown by the major geographical groups follow: Atlantic Seaboard, 4.9 per cent against 2.7 per cent in the previous week; Central Industrial, 6.3 against 5.7; New England, 6 per cent against 3.8; Pacific Coast 6.6 against 6.8.

A. L. Humphrey Cheerful On Air Brake's Prospects

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WESTINGHOUSE AIR Brake Company has continued its research and development work all through the period of the depression, A. L. Humphrey, executive director, declared at the annual meeting yesterday.

Mr. Humphrey said that the prospects for immediate recovery in business are most encouraging. He stated that the improved air brake which the company recently developed will be a factor of major importance in the organization's future sales. He said:

"Never in the history of our organization have we been in a more advantageous position to furnish the railroads modern, up-to-date apparatus. An example of this is our new freight brake equipment, whose recent thorough tests with the railroads have produced highly gratifying results. This new braking equipment is undoubtedly one of the greatest advancements ever made in the control of freight trains. Providing many economies and every feature necessary for modern operation, it is highly probable that this new equipment will gradually supplant the present system of control."

* * *

Developed During Depression Period

THE NEW BRAKE has been a development of the depression period. Mr. Humphrey stated that the company's executive and technical staff has never been busier than during the past few years. He declared:

"Throughout this entire era, our confidence in the revival of normal trade conditions is reflected in the fact that our company has spared no expense in the furtherance of experimental endeavor, research and development. Although sizeable expenditures have been made in the continuance of this work, none of this has been charged to operating expense.

"This phase of the company's progress has been financed exclusively through a reserve especially set up before the era of depression. Notwithstanding its unstinted use as an avenue to better this company's position and to facilitate a general recovery, the sizeable sum of $2,360,000 still remains in reserve in addition to an earned surplus of over $8,000,000, as shown by our recent annual report."

Union Switch Creates Demand

THE COMPANY'S principal subsidiary, Union Switch and Signal, also has been continuing development work on a large scale. Economies in railroad operation which are made possible by the use of improved block signaling systems, power interlocking devices, car retarders, centralized traffic control systems and continuous cab signaling systems have created a substantial demand.

Westinghouse Air Brake's affiliated companies in Great Britain, Belgium, France, Italy, Germany and Australia have been affected by the depression, but they were said to have enjoyed a more satisfactory business volume than companies engaged in similar activities in this country.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, April 19.—The bond market sang the "inflation blues" today with such a variety of discords that it was difficult to separate the joyful from the sorrowful notes. United States government securities, nervous yesterday, gave serious thought to the

Is Industry Being Treated As Stepchild?

—By B. C. FORBES—

IS INDUSTRY, America's daughter that made her rich and famous, now being treated like a stepchild?

Industry replies, "Yes."

Mr. Forbes

BANKS HAVE received scores of millions from Mamma Government. Railroads have received scores of millions from Mamma Government. Several hundred millions were handed over by Mamma Government to the Federal Farm Board to help farmers.

And Mamma Government gives every indication of being willing to distribute, not only millions, but billions among favored children. Industry complains:

"I was told at Washington that industry is not essential; therefore, the question of loaning to it has not been seriously considered. My answer was that it might be extremely uncomfortable to walk down Pennsylvania avenue naked. . . .

"We all feel, I think, that we are most essential. The ego that applies to the three favored groups at the moment, agriculture, railroads and financial institutions, is quite remarkable, yet all three are tremendously dependent on industry.

"Moneys loaned to us will not be for the purpose of putting the breath of life into something old and decrepit, but for new raw materials and new payrolls. It is the one place where the loaning of either commodities or moneys will be tremendously helpful, from the standpoint of creating assets to offset the liabilities, which is not the case in many of the other loaning situations."

"We have often heard the statement that industry is the backbone of our nation, but due to a major operation, chiefly by the banking interests, this backbone has been removed and undoubtedly put in the discard.

"There is no doubt but what industrial employes outnumber by far the farm employes who seem to be getting so much consideration at the present time. I would like to see some good stiff propaganda shot into Washington on the need for giving industry greater consideration and encouragement."

J. D. McCARTY, of the Chickamagua Fertilizer Works, states:

"The fertilizer industry lacks protection of a tariff on a single imported article used as fertilizer or in the making of complete fertilizer—no tariff on nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia, bone meal, potash, blood, tankage, etc. The gates are wide open for the foreigner and for the destruction of the home manufacturer who has lost the shirt off his back."

AGRICULTURE AND other recipients of governmental largesse doubtless will reply:

"American industry has been protected by the government for years, at the expense of the rest of us. It is high time conditions were equalized. Agricultural prosperity would bring industrial prosperity."

ACTUALITIES are of more urgent importance than academic arguments. The fact is that industry has suffered and is suffering acutely, compelling it to throw idle millions of workers, to stop or drastically reduce dividend disbursements to stockholders, to fall down in many cases on interest payments on bonds and to sink into bankruptcy.

At least two plans calculated to infuse fresh life and strength into industry have been presented to Washington, one by Fred I. Kent, the other by M. C. Rorty; but nothing concrete has been done for the largest employer of all. Banking assistance, it is bitterly complained by concerns of moderate size, cannot be obtained.

Not even the relief which modification or suspension of anti-trust laws might afford has been granted by Washington.

HAS INDUSTRY, or has it not, real reason for resentfully alleging that she is being treated like a stepchild?

U. S. TIGHTENS GOLD BAN

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Effective today, the government will not allow gold exports except earmarked gold and for balances in commercial exchange for trade movements. This step was decided upon as a move to raise commodity prices, and as a further move in connection with the international conversations on money which are to get under way with the arrival here of Premier MacDonald, of England.

The decision means that the dollar internationally will be left to take care of itself, which is regarded here as putting the United States on a par with most other nations of the world. The chance of the nations getting together on a constructive program to stabilize currencies and exchange is enhanced, in the opinion of President Roosevelt.

Financial Topics

Steel Group Dominates List on Spectacular Upward Push

The steel shares as a group held a commanding position in the market today. Practically all the issues, including Steel common and preferred and both Bethlehem issues, moved into new high territory for the year on very substantial dealings. The steel making shares were spurred by the encouraging tenor of the trade summaries, which as anticipated proved quite optimistic. Operations at 23 per cent of capacity, as indicated by the Iron Age are the highest since March, 1932, and improvement has been marked in almost every district except the Atlantic seaboard, but with Cleveland, Chicago and Youngstown, feeling the effects of motor buying showing to most advantage.

The opening was marked by the most spectacular display witnessed in many months. Not since the resumption of business after the bank moratorium had speculation assumed such proportions. The tape fell far behind the actual pace of business, lagging some six or seven minutes for a long strength in the first hour. The character of the initial half hour's trading is best illustrated by the size of the blocks which changed hands in many of the leading issues, such as General Motors, Steel common, Kennecott, International Harvester, Goodyear Rubber, American Can, Commercial Solvents and Montgomery Ward. Initial transactions in those issues involved blocks ranging from 2,500 to 8,000 shares.

The United States dollar lost in value today on the exchanges in New York, Paris and London. Dealers attributed the downward movement to reports that gold exports from the United States might be halted and the dollar permitted to seek its own level. In Wall street sterling and the French franc moved strongly against the dollar. In Paris the dollar hit a new official low since November, 1925, closing at 24.60 francs. In London the dollar closed at $3.55 to the pound, against a close yesterday of $3.47¼.

An upward trend of car-loadings was predicted by M. H. Cahill, president of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines, at the reorganization meeting of directors today. He pointed out that loadings for the first half of April offered much encouragement. The daily average for the first 14 days of this month totaled 1,082 cars, compared with an average for the like period in March of 929 cars, an increase of 153, and a decrease of 61 below the daily average of 1,143 for the first 15 days of April last year. Prior to April, the Katy's loadings had been averaging 150 cars a day below last year's averages, Mr. Cahill said.

The strength in stocks and commodities has some of the earmarks of a mild flight from money. The theory, apparently, is that if business doesn't turn the corner in the next few months, then experiments will be tried which may involve tampering with the currency. Thus stocks and commodities are a hedge. Business is getting better, though, and later events may prove this really is the turn. Which is leading to some suspicion that all the inflation talk is clever propaganda to induce people to loosen up and keep the ball rolling. Europe continues to be a consistent and heavy buyer of stocks.

Louis S. Cates, president of the Phelps Dodge Corporation, told stockholders at the company's annual meeting today that "there are constructive events now going on that will make for better business within the next six months."

The copper company official added that, "While we cannot straighten out the whole thing ourselves, I think the international economic conference may bring constructive developments throughout the world. In my opinion," he said, "the only thing that can clear up surplus stocks of copper is the resumption of business, and when that comes it will clean up the stocks because consumers are virtually bare of the metal and producers are carrying the major part of this load."

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, April 19.—The market was due 2 to 2½c higher. Opened unchanged to ½c lower and at 2:20 p. m. was unchanged to ½c higher.

The market closed generally ¼ pence lower.

Gabriel Over the White House

President Hammond Drops Dead Following Prevention of Speech

Gabriel Over the White House

(Continuation of Chapter XIV.)

Hammond's meeting with his Cabinet was not unlike that of four years earlier when the President faced his old Cabinet for the first time after the automobile smash.

Now, as then, he made curt acknowledgements of their congratulations on his escape and recovery. Again he sat silent for a while studying their faces as if seeing them for the first time. From this point on, however, similarity ended. He who sat in the presidential chair at the head of the long table, fumbling with papers or nervously drumming with his fingers on its polished surface, was an almost ludicrous parody of the man of destiny who had hitherto occupied that place.

Garside, Van Rassaeler and Peale, who knew the truth, were not materially affected by the change, but the other members were dumbfounded. They eyed each other with doubts and questioning looks. Evidently the rumors about town were not entirely nonsense after all.

Contrary to his practice, the President stood to address his Cabinet. Surrounded by an administration of which each member was a stranger and burdened with the knowledge of his four years' mental catalepsy, he faced his ordeal with dignity and courage.

Whatever the opinion of Hammond's character in the past, something inherently fine predominated in that tragic valediction.

Condemns Own Ideas

He spoke quietly and without any attempt at rhetorical display.

A passing reference to his illness and the many hours devoted to a careful study of the political developments of the last few years, and then:

"Much that has been done commands my cordial approval, but there are matters, particularly those germane to the Constitution and our relations with foreign powers, which excite profound doubt in my mind, and in some instances unqualified disapproval."

For several seconds it was impossible for the President to go on. One or two men stood up without realizing what they had done. Others leaned forward on the table, their bodies rigid, their jaws slack, staring with incredulous eyes. From all sides came gasps, exclamation and protests. It required a warning wave of the hand from Garside before there was any relaxation.

Stupefaction seemed to overcome the Cabinet as it listened to an unequivocal condemnation of various ordinances, all initiated by this man, the successful consummation of which had earned him the plaudits of the world.

The Washington Covenant, that mighty charter of humanity's hopes, was "a tragedy for America." He wished "the people of the United States to be great, but great only in their own right. The country should be the acknowledged leader among nations and not merely a member of a team of ill-assorted reactionary oligarchies and sham democracies."

By now the President was tiring. He swayed a little on his feet, and in his ashen face the bluish tinge of his lips became more noticeable. He sipped some water and then asked them to forgive him if he sat while continuing his remarks.

"Betrayed the People"

Sympathy for the broken giant was mingled with relief. Disaster might still be averted. Garside would get the nomination and the great renaissance would be carried on to its triumphant fulfilment . . . But the President was speaking again.

"Gentlemen, before I close this meeting I have one more word to say. There will be another meeting tomorrow at 11 and at that time I propose to lay before you the terms of a television speech I feel it my duty to deliver. The Secretary of Education will please make the necessary arrangements."

Every heart seemed to stop beating. Garside jumped to his feet, but before he could speak, Hammond went on: "Until that speech has been made I would ask you gentlemen not to disclose to anyone what has occurred at this meeting."

His voice reflected the unutterable weariness of body and mind. He continued to speak, but more slowly, with painful pauses between the short sentences. "I shall be advised . . . that such a speech, such a call upon my strength is unnecessary . . . but at whatever cost to me physically or politically . . . I must face the dictates of my conscience . . . of my honor as a citizen . . . I owe to those who elected me . . . entrusted me with my high responsibility . . . a humble apology." His voice sank to a whisper, and his head sank lower. "I have failed to keep the faith . . . unwittingly, and by the heavy hand of affliction . . . but none the less I have violated my oath . . . I . . . have . . . betrayed . . . the people."

Cabinet Meets

With Dr. Eastman's aid I got the President over to the White House and up to his room where Connelly and I helped him undress and put him into bed. Then his overtaxed heart again failed. It was not a serious attack, and a few inhalations of amyl-nitrous gas quickly restored him. Soon he was sleeping peacefully, normally and without an opiate.

I went to find Peale, but he had hurried off to a conference with Garside and other leading members of the administration.

The speech was scheduled to begin at 3 p. m. In the interim the Cabinet met in agitated conclave. Secretary of Commerce Burroughs, recognized as the strongest man in the Cabinet after Garside, spoke first.

"Mr. Secretary of State," he said, "no man honors the President more or has tried more faithfully to serve him than I. So great is my admiration for him that, in normal circumstances, I would range myself on his side against the united opposition of this Cabinet. But these are not normal circumstances, nor is the President a normal man. It will not be President Hammond who will be sitting at the televisor in a short time, but some tragic changeling."

Garside turned toward him and said in his calm impersonal voice: "Have you any concrete suggestion to offer as to how your proposal might be carried out?"

The Secretary of Commerce hesitated some time and then, his face bent so low that nobody could see its expression, he said: "This Cabinet must take the necessary steps to restrain the President."

It was out at last, the thing they all had felt but had not the courage to frame in words.

* * *

It was a few minutes before 3 o'clock when I went to call the President. To my surprise he was up and dressed.

Speech Prevented

For a quarter of an hour or so he silently read through and marked parts of his speech. Before he went downstairs to the Red Room in which the television apparatus was set up, I realized that in addition to his habitual nervousness he was greatly troubled in mind.

As I held the door open for him to pass through, he spoke, more to himself than to me. "I wonder if wisdom is guiding me in this thing?" I made no reply.

"Right or wrong, it is too late now. My road lies straight before me. Before God I can take no other."

The elevator dropped us down to the main floor. The President's eyes swept the great foyer as if looking for something not to be found there. Then he turned and entered the Red Room.

It was five minutes before the time. An ornate clock on the mantel ticked off the minutes. As it struck the half-hour a ruby bulb glowed and a bluish-white radiance spread across the ground glass of the televisor.

"Citizens of the United States!" The President's clear voice rang out like a bell in the stillness.

My heart jumped into my throat, for the green light had gone out. A flicker or two and the televisor panel showed only a dull steely opaqueness.

A breakdown, a short-circuit or something. I rushed across to the desk to telephone for technical help.

President Collapses

The President stared at the dead televisor as in a daze. Then something seemed to flash in his mind. He pushed back his chair and stood up. I saw that his whole body was trembling. "I wonder—" he commenced. A knock at the door stopped him.

Garside entered the room followed immediately by Van Rassaeler. Both men were deathly pale, but Garside's voice was unruffled and composed as he addressed Hammond. "Mr. President, it is my painful duty to inform you that the Cabinet, holding it to be contrary to the best interests of the country, by a unanimous decision, has cancelled the arrangements for your speech this afternoon."

For a moment I thought the President did not understand. He swayed a little while Garside was speaking and steadied himself on the arm of the chair.

Suddenly his face was suffused with blood as a furious anger boiled up within him. He took one quick step toward Garside, both hands raised high, fists clenched. It looked as if he were going to strike the Secretary of State. The President pulled himself up to his full height as his words rolled out like thunder: "You . . . have . . . dared . . ." Then, without warning, he crumpled to the floor.

I rushed forward and snatched out the case of phials from his waistcoat pocket. Breaking off the end of one I covered it with my handkerchief and was about to kneel so that he could inhale its contents.

Van Rassaeler, who had been looking with bowed head at the fallen figure whose stertorous breathing had now given way to a faint riffling sound like far-off winds, turned and placed his hand on my arm.

Hammond's Death

The world stood still. He stared down at Garside who was supporting Hammond's head on his knee. These two seemed to peer into each other's souls. No word was spoken. Garside shuddered slightly as he lowered the President's sagging head.

Tears were running down Van Rassaeler's cheeks as he turned again to me. "No, Beek—no. Don't even try."

I glanced down at the handkerchief and phial in my hand and looked up again into his tortured face. Once more that silent denial. Then a halting whisper, "It . . . is . . . better . . . so."

My brain seemed to be frozen. Space and time meant nothing. Yet something told me he was right.

My hand dropped to my side. As from a great distance, I heard the flat thump of the phial as it fell from my cold fingers and struck the red carpet.

* * *

Against this solemn background the United States flag atop the White House roof hung limp and motionless round its staff.

Suddenly the flag started down—down—down. Some chance current of air caught it in its descent and the red and white stripes and then the shower of silver stars fluttered out into view.

Once more, and this time finally, the flag sagged and drooped round its pole, shapeless, lifeless and mournful.

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

For three or four days nothing happened. Every morning Sharlie got up and went to the Gerow School of Business. Late every afternoon she came home and ate supper with her mother—a silent meal.

No one telephoned either of them. No one rang the doorbell downstairs. Sounds drifted in to them from the other apartments in the building. Sounds of talk and laughter and music. But they could not have been more to themselves if they had been living on an island in the middle of some wide ocean.

The living room that once had echoed to the noisy laughter of the Schultzes and the Hanaberrys was as silent as the grave now. Dodie had almost nothing to say, and Sharlie was afraid to talk to her and went to bed as soon as the dishes were done these nights. Propped against her pillows she read magazines, did her nails, looked over the shorthand symbols she had been learning, and wished that Edna and her father were at home once more.

"This quiet is beginning to get on my nerves," Dodie remarked suddenly one Saturday night as the two of them sat at supper. "I've got to go somewhere—see something—do something — or I'm going crazy!"

"Let's go to the movies," Sharlie suggested eagerly and stood up. "We can do the dishes when we come home—"

"No," her mother broke in. "It won't do us any good to go out for an hour or two. The flat will still be waiting for us when we come to it . . . The place is getting on my nerves, I tell you! I'm sick of it. I want some people around me!"

"Why don't you call Maud up?"

DODIE SORRY

"Maud!" her mother repeated Maud's name with scorn. "Maud! . . . I saw her starting out with Carl in their car a while ago! I notice that she hangs on to her husband no matter how much she may encourage other women to get rid of theirs . . ."

She stopped for a moment and then went on: "No, I shouldn't say that. No one ever suggested that I leave your father, but I did meet that man through Maud."

"I know."

"And Maud says now that if she'd known how seriously I was going to take him she'd never have introduced him to me," Dodie ran on. "That's what makes me so ashamed, Sharlie: that I did take him seriously, when all the time he was married . . ." She groaned.

"Well, so were you," Sharlie reminded her, "so that makes things even."

"Yes, but I began to talk divorce right away," her mother said. "And as I look back on it now, I can see that that's when he began to get tired of me . . . What a fool a woman can make of herself, can't she? Here I was with a perfectly good husband and a nice family and some friends . . ."

"And you can get them all back again," Sharlie finished her sentence for her. "All you have to do is step to the telephone and you can have father and Edna here in no time."

WAKENED BY MOTHER

Her mother shook her bright head. "No, I never could face them, to start with. And even if I could, we never could be happy here together the way we used to be. We'd always be remembering . . . this."

Late that night Sharlie went into the bathroom for a drink of water and found her standing there with a glass in one hand and an open pasteboard box in the other.

"Sleeping powders," she explained. "I haven't had any real rest for three or four nights, but I'm going to sleep tonight or know the reason why."

And while Sharlie watched her she took two of the powders. Then she went to bed without bothering to cold-cream her face or put on the rubber bandage that she wore every night for the purpose of preventing a double chin.

Some time during the night she was awakened by a sudden flood of light on her eyelids. She sat up in bed and blinked. Her mother stood in the doorway with both of her hands clasped around her throat. She looked frightened.

"Dodie! What's wrong? Sharlie was out of bed in a second, padding across the floor to her mother on her bare feet.

"My throat . . . I think I must have taken an overdose of those powders." Her mother spoke in a voice that was nothing more than a husky whisper. "My throat's all closed up, and I have such a terrible pain in my stomach—" She began to cry like a frightened little girl.

CALLS DOCTOR

"I took two more tablets after you went to bed," she whimpered. "I was sleepy, but I couldn't sleep . . . I don't feel sleepy now, either, and I don't believe those things were sleeping powders at all! The druggist must have sent me something else by mistake!"

Sharlie flew to the telephone. Her fingers seemed to be all thumbs as she ran through the pages searching for the number of the nearest doctor. She found it after what seemed an hour . . . Dr. J. H. Pittman, Urban 2626.

A man's voice, thick and slow with sleep, answered her. Yes, he would come right over. What was wrong? An overdose of sleeping powders . . . Well, then, she'd better give her mother as much milk and white of an egg as she could take, at once.

"I will—I will. But do please hurry!" Sharlie hung up the receiver and ran into the kitchen. There was a half pint of cream and three eggs in the tiny ice box. With fingers that shook she separated the whites from the yolks of the eggs and carried them across into her room. Her mother lay across her bed, crying into the pillow.

She sat up like an obedient child and swallowed the whites of the eggs first and then the cream.

"Horrible stuff!" she said in that strangled, whispering voice. "My mouth tastes like ink or pennies—you know that brassy, nasty taste of pennies?"

Edna reached the flat before the doctor did. Not more than 12 or 13 minutes after Sharlie telephoned her, the doorbell rang in the vestibule downstairs. And Edna came swiftly up. As Sharlie stood at the top, waiting for her, she could hear a taxicab turning in the street outside.

EDNA SUSPICIOUS

"What's Dodie been trying to do—kill herself?" she asked as she stepped into the living room. "How could she take an overdose of sleeping powders? No one would be fool enough to do that!"

She went through the rooms like a rush of clean fresh wind on her way to Dodie. Roused from sleep to dress in the middle of the night, she was as fresh as a daisy and as neat as a bright new pin. Sharlie followed her, wringing her hands.

"What's this tale that Sharlie's been telling me?" she asked, kneeling on the floor beside the bed and taking one of Dodie's hands in her capable-looking ones.

The door-bell rang.

"That'll be the doctor," Sharlie cried, and ran to open the door for him. He was a little dark man, with a mustache like a smudge of soot on his upper lip, and he carried a shabby black bag.

As he put it on a chair, Edna came into the room, holding the little box of sleeping powders in her hand.

She followed Sharlie into the kitchen three or four minutes afterward. "I'm not sure that your mother didn't intend to take too many of these powders," she whispered. "But, remember, the doctor is to think it was an accident . . . I'm going into the bedroom now to help him, and as soon as I shut the door you telephone your father. Tell him he is to come right home."

RIOTS OF MONTREAL; BURNING OF THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY (1849)

This was the climax over the passage of the Indemnity Bill by a new formed cabinet of the "French Party" (to compensate loyal sufferers' damage due to the insurrection against the British in 1838) for "Upper" and "Lower" Canada (this latter being the seat of that insurrection). The opposite "British Party" had endeavored for some time thereafter to secede to the United States. (World's History.)

MANUFACTURING CALCIUM CARBIDE IN ELECTRIC FURNACE

The electrodes (steel pipe filled with tamped carbon) are connected with one electric pole, the other is at the bottom of the furnace pit. Between them great electric arcs are drawn. The pit is filled with limestone which fuses and gives, together with the carbon of the electrode, molten calcium carbide drawn off by tapping the furnace. The electrodes are "continuous," steel casings (tamped with carbon) being welded to their tops (in a tamping-house) and lowered at the rate their bottoms are used up. (Bingham: The Manufacture of Carbide of Calcium). (Chemistry).

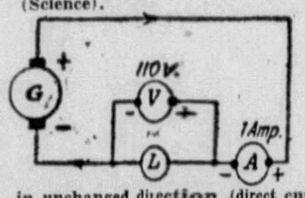
MEASURING INSTRUMENTS BASED ON MAGNETIC EFFECT

(N) (S) are poles of permanent magnets; the electric current is led in a pivoting coil between them, which acts also as a magnet having poles (s) and (n). The attraction of opposite and repulsion of similar poles turns the coil, giving the measurement (ampere, volts), (Smith: Industrial Electricity), (Science).



in unchanged direction (direct current). (A) measures intensity in amperes. A current has one-ampere intensity if it deposits 0.001118 g. silver per second from a silver nitrate solution. The resistance of a circuit is measured in ohms. 1 ohm is the resistance of a mercury column of 1 sq. mm. in cross section 106.3 centimeter long, at zero ° C. (V) measures the electromotive force in volts. 1 volt is the electromotive force, which causes a current of 1 amp. intensity in a circuit having the resistance of 1 ohm. George S. Ohm's law (1827): Intensity=Electromotive force/Resistance or ampere = volt/ohm; volt=ampere x ohm; ohm = volt/ampere.

For Women Only

But the lads who operate the beauty garages insist on painting the lily. They displayed plenty of accessory gadgets at their last New York conference.

They now make wire eyebrows, rubber chins and artificial noses. But the most amazing and derogatory jigger is a set of double clamps to pin the ears back.

In that case the lady must stop dancing, bow to her agile and athletic partner, point to the floor and say, "Pardon me, but you have stepped on my nose."

Ain't that lovely? What's the world aiming at? If you squeeze your dance partner's waist too hard her ears snap out and knock your hat off. The pins have worked loose.

Now, girls, let's get to facts. If you are not pretty before you start then all those thingbobs won't help you any.

What you really need is fresh air and sunshine. And you can get plenty of that if we can believe our eyes and the new bathing costumes.

That's it. Fresh air and sunshine. We were also going to add good food. But us guys have to pay for that most of the time.

So, we will settle for fresh air and sunshine. And don't tack on all those beauty implements to your little noses and ears. What's going to happen when you go in swimming?

One big wave will slap you fore and aft and the ocean will look like a freight boat has been wrecked with all on board. The beach will be full of flotsam and jetsam for weeks. Your complexion will be washed ashore with the seaweed, empty bottles and chicken crates.

We believe in rouge, powder and vanishing creams. But no mechanical business. It's too much like technocracy.

Having the Courts License Beer Sellers Would Bring Back the Saloon—Pinchot's Plan Better,

The Legislature has insisted, despite the probability of a veto, on having beer licenses issued by the Quarter Sessions Court after hearings in which it would be necessary for applicants to be represented by attorneys,

The effect of making it costly and difficult to obtain a beer license would be to make the selling of beer a business specialty —that is, to bring back the saloon.

Beer has been sold in Pittsburgh since April 7 in restaurants, drug stores and groceries. Anybody may sell beer who cares to do so.

No evil effects on the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth have been evident. Conditions, on the contrary, are better than they were in the old days when beer was sold only in saloons under strict regulation. Prohibitionists must have been pleasantly surprised to find that the widespread sale of beer during the last two weeks has produced no noticeable increase in drunkenness.

People who drink beer at soda fountains or in restaurants, or who buy it at grocery stores for home consumption, are more likely to drink in moderation than if they drank in barrooms.

For this reason, there is merit in Gov. Gifford Pinchot's proposal that beer licenses be issued by county treasurers without red tape, and as a matter of course, just as automobile or dog licenses are issued, to all applicants of good reputation who can satisfy a few simple requirements.

It is to be hoped that the Legislature will yield to the Governor in this; for the Governor's assent to the plan for a convention of 15 delegates at large, to pass on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, was based on the promise that the licensing of beer venders would not be made a function of the courts.

The Governor and the Legislature should get together on this problem quickly, for the state, according to Pinchot, is losing $10,000 every day that beer goes untaxed.

Danger in Arms Embargo

The Proposal is Untimely and Unwise, and the Senate Should Reject It.

Doubtless there will be—certainly there ought to be—a fight to the finish against the adoption by the Senate of any such arms embargo resolution as that which has just been jammed through the House.

It is proposed by this resolution to authorize the President to enter into arrangements with foreign governments to prevent the shipment of arms whenever and wherever he thinks best.

No resolution dealing with such an intricate foreign problem has any place on the legislative program of this extraordinary session of Congress which was called to relieve the emergency here at home.

Adoption of this resolution will not relieve the domestic emergency but may aggravate it by new threats of war.

But the resolution is as unwise as it is untimely because as Congressman Beck, of Pennsylvania pointed out:

"It seeks to vest in the President of the United States, to a large extent, the supreme issue of war and peace, for with this power his ability to implicate us in any part of the world seems reasonably clear."

As this student of the Constitution rightly contended, this resolution would empower the President in case of war or in case of its threat "not merely to form an alliance with other powers to boycott one or both of the nations involved in the conflict," but also to select "which of the two warring nations he regards as the aggressor and which this nation will favor by allowing munitions of war to be sent by our citizens, and which it will discriminate against."

By the Federal Constitution, the power to declare war is placed with the Congress. There it should remain.

And the way to keep the power to make war where the Constitution put it is to reject outright the arms embargo resolution which the House has approved and sent to the Senate.

The American people look to their Senators in Congress, Democrats and Republicans alike, to hold this unwise and untimely proposal in the Committee on Foreign Relations until the Congress meets in regular session next January.

Then there will be ample time to subject this un-American provocative and dangerous proposal to that careful study and ample debate which will expose the reckless folly of this latest attempt to lure the United States into a war-breeding alliance with foreign powers.

Public Utility Control

The Need For Such Legislation Is Clearly Pointed Out By Gov. Pinchot,

Gov. Gifford Pinchot's message to the Legislature calling for stricter control of the public utilities is a temperately worded and reasonable document, and the members will be derelict in their duty if they fail to heed it.

Notwithstanding the pressure of other problems, the people have not forgotten the ill-treatment they have received from some of the utilities companies and will not be satisfied until corrective legislation has been enacted.

The Insull crash has given point to Gov. Pinchot's demand for effective control over the relations that may exist between Pennsylvania utilities and holding companies. The protection of the people of Pennsylvania in the purchase of utilities securities is another demand that the Governor rightly emphasizes.

Fair rates will not be assured until action is taken to prevent utilities companies from inflating their capitalization through bookkeeping writeups, by which unreasonably large earnings are made to appear only a modest return on the investment. According to Pinchot, Pennsylvania electric companies were enabled by such writeups to overcharge consumers by $30,000,000 a year before the business slump.

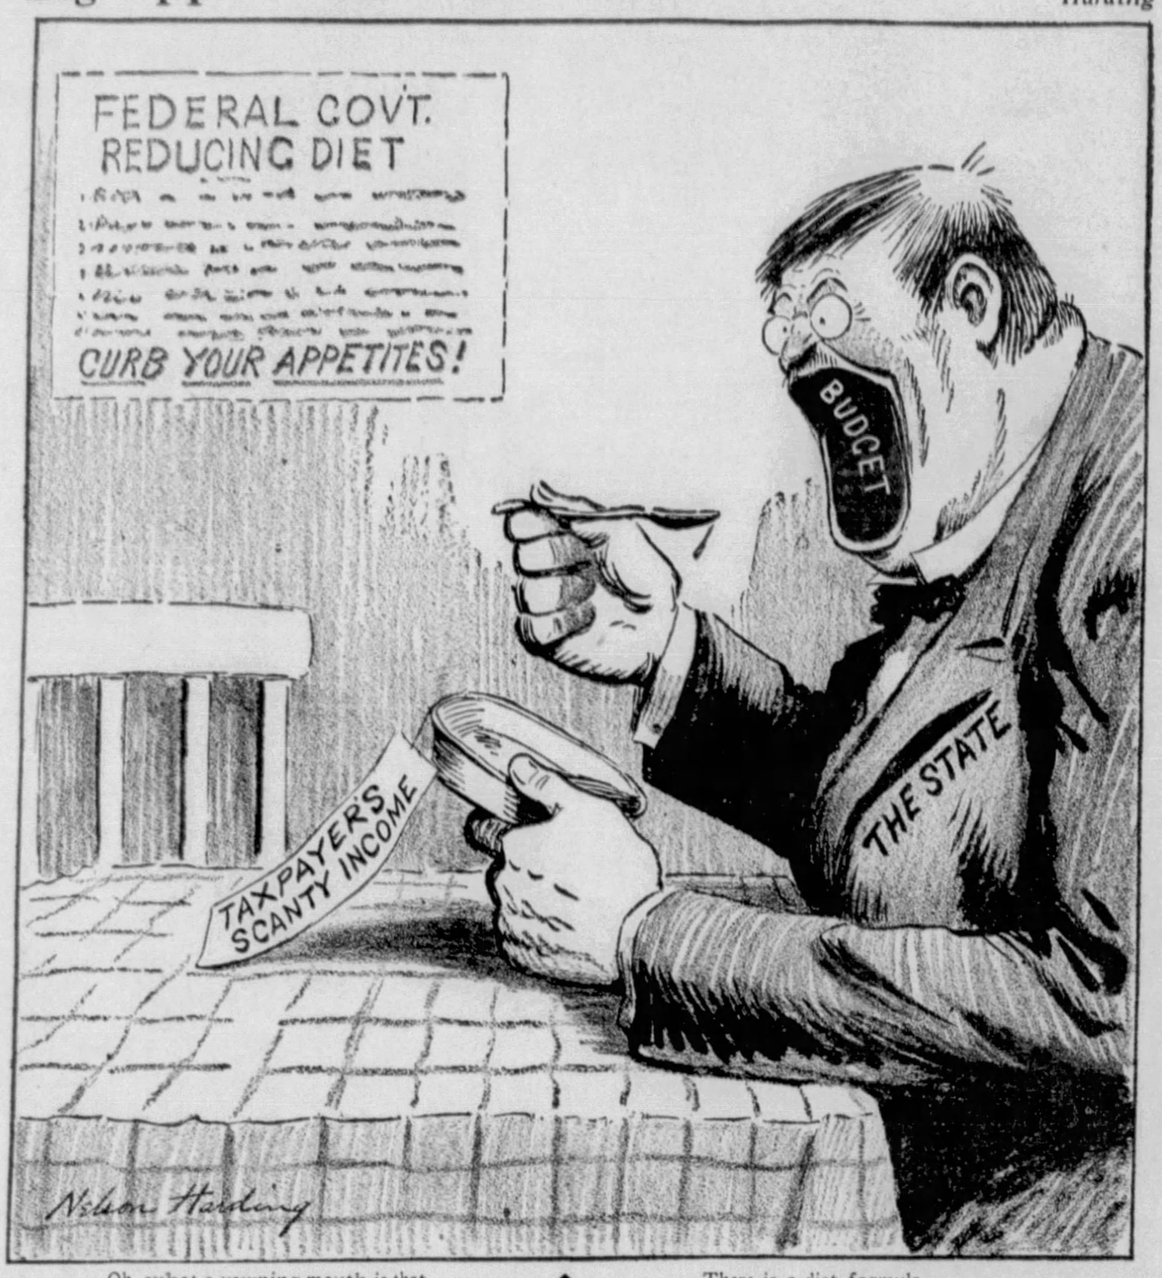
Reasonable, too, is the Governor's demand that no increase in rates by any utility shall go into effect until approved by the Public Service Commission.

The Legislature shows no disposition to enact fair utility legislation, nor to act properly on the charges of corrupt relations between utilities companies and former members of the Public Service Commission, nor to confirm or reject Gov. Pinchot's appointments to the Public Service Commission.

This is clear negligence of duty, and if the members think the people will overlook it, they are deceiving themselves.

Big Appetite for Small Meal

By Nelson Harding



Oh, what a yawning mouth is that
For such a little dinner!
And certainly that diner's shape
Should be a whole lot thinner.

There is a diet formula
Displayed upon the wall
Which greedy gluttons better read—

Duchesse D'Uzes at 86

She Was "Lieutenant of Wolfhounds,"

A PLUCKY OLD FRENCH LADY.

This lady, the Dowager Duchesse D'Uzes, who bears the official title of "Lieutenant of Wolfhounds," although it is probably some time since she killed a wolf, denied the reality of old age, and therefore age did not bother her.

You see her here, almost 86 years of age, shortly before she died, riding side saddle on one of her powerful "hunters," a horse on which she galloped through the forests of Rambouillet.

Thousands of Americans that have gone to Paris know or at least have heard of the venerable Duchesse D'Uzes, her horses, her hounds and her hospitality.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 19.—One of Broadway's most brilliantly successful playwrights, Edward Sheldon, is in the fourth year of semi-invalidism from a stubborn arthritis. Yet he gives more valuable advice to those launching plays than almost any other individual in the theater.

Sheldon, before his fortieth year, authored such stirring dramas as "Salvation Nell," "The Nigger," "Song of Songs," and, in collaboration with Charles MacArthur, the famous "Lulu Belle." He was stricken at the peak of his astonishing career and his recovery has been tedious.

He can visualize a play from the manuscript and inject those tense bits that lift mediocrity to the heights. Or whittle a dull line into a smoothly sharp barb. Those who go expecting to cheer him, run into a reverse angle. He usually cheers them.

He is one of the few playwrights who salvaged a permanent income out of his calling by investing enormous royalties soundly. It is proverbial most playwrights wind up empty handed. Owen Davis, along with Sheldon, is an exception. Also the most prolific living playwright.

A letter today from a "grandma-raised" lady is a clear-cut cameo of all grandmas. She writes: "My grandmother made sassafras tea, saved coupons from coffee cans and was a tryer. She tried everything that came free through the mails or was passed around. Walnut hair stain often had to wear off when it ran down her face. She made apple butter in the back yard, stirring it with a large wooden paddle. Her piccalilli and little yellow tomato preserves were finest in the country."

Every columnist now and then longs to bugle one of those dainty little blasts that flares into a sudden rainbow of surprise. The two who have done it better than all others are B. L. T. and Don Marquis. And like lesser strugglers, I am told, they were as much surprised as readers. Such paragraphs never require concentration. They just pop out of the nowhere — nuggets in the ooze of muck.

The shyest of all distinguished American writers is Edwin Arlington Robinson. A poet and notable contributor to the Arthurian Legend of English literature, although a Down East Yankee from Head Tide, Maine, he lives modestly and with frugality in Forty-second street near the East River. He runs from interviews and publicity of all sorts. "Tristram" reputedly made him tolerably well off, but his amusements are billiards, an occasional symphony at Carnegie and, oddly enough, reading the "Argosy" magazine. The only time I ever saw him in public was dining alone one Sunday evening in a far corner of the Lafayette.

Lillian Gish lives in an apartment facing the river on Beekman Terrace. In an apartment off the same entry a while since lived a young man about town, believe it or not, named Tipton Blish. Furthermore, Blish employed a Japanese servant named Nish. But the confusion in the entry became entirely too ishish and Miss Gish fled to another floor where she may reside in a little more lonlinish.

The most beautiful and elaborate private home on Fifth avenue in its lower reaches is that of William B. Osgood Field, just opposite the Vanderbilt mansion. The front hall is magnificent with broad winding stairways, flowers, tapestries and a profusion of house servants. A Yale freshman from the provinces, unused to such splendor, was recently invited there for dinner by a younger member of the family. Abashed, he scanned the regimented varletry and then boldly addressed the butler on duty. "What floor," asked he, "does Mr. Field live on?"

William A. Brady was telling of the time Jim Corbett brought his father from San Francisco to see New York. The elder Corbett was a hardened Celt whose brogue was the thick of batter. After showing him the sights of Broadway, the Hippodrome and Wall street, young Jim suggested they go down to Steve Brodie's saloon on the Bowery. The father demurred. "Thot's the yellow-livered spalpeen," he barked, "who sed me bye would be knocked out by Fitz in two rounds!" Jim told him that was just an opinion and after all Brodie was the man who jumped off Brooklyn Bridge and a celebrated character. Finally the old gentleman consented. Brodie was introduced. The elder Corbett, looking him over, inquired: "Why didn't you jump over the bridge? Any mon could jump off'n it."

MAYBE I'M WRONG

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 19.—An actor and his wife were having their weekly quarrel and the missus was telling him plenty.

"You've got to give me more spending money, or I'm going to leave you," she said, "and it'll serve you right if I hire a smart lawyer and get a hundred dollars a week alimony out of you."

Police doctors took a man to the alcoholic ward the other evening so fried that the nurses had to use a pan-cake turner to roll him over in bed.

Isn't It So?

To be really up-to-date, a woman should know something about bridge and vitamines.

Some people marry in haste, but do not repent at leisure, because they find they have no leisure.

The optimist never complains. If he breaks an arm he is thankful that it isn't a leg. If he breaks a leg he is thankful that it isn't his neck.

SEAT-GRABBING MEN

By Winifred Black

"Daily I travel on the cars and see, to my disgust, women, arms loaded with packages, standing up while men hold down the seats. Just yesterday I saw and counted eight women, some well along in years, trying to keep their balance as the car swayed along. I also noticed about 80 per cent of the seats occupied by men. Not one offered to give up his seat. Talking with men about such neglect, some, with a wave of the hand, say, 'Have our jobs, act like us and wear our clothes.'

"I see big strapping boys board the cars, flop on the seats and sprawl, push and yell and apparently think of no one else in this world but themselves. H. L. R."

Well, where in the name of common sense did you come from at this day and age, H. L. R.?

"Gentlemen"—let's see, there was such a word once upon a time, wasn't there?—Wasn't there another word that went with it? Seems to me that it began with L and ended with Y—L-a-d-y—that was it, wasn't it?

Both of those words are fast disappearing from the language.

Why shouldn't they, may I ask?

Men don't want to be gentlemen any more—they want to be that strange thing they call a he-man.

I do wish I could see a she-woman—just for a change. I wonder what she would look like, don't you?

Now I am going to say something that will probably make you cross, H. L. R., and here it is:

When women were ladies or tried at least to pretend to be ladies, men had a grand time being gentlemen. No gentleman ever sat down in the room where a woman was standing. No gentleman ever talked with a lady and kept his hat on his head. No gentleman swore in the presence of a lady or even dreamed of using a rough or vulgar word—they kept those things for the barroom. But what can gentlemen do when some ladies have insisted on acting like anything but ladies?

They swear and they drink and tell me, my good friend, you seem to be a man of middle-age, did you often in your youth see a woman do those things?

You did not! However, I don't think it is men's fault—this business of boorishness and bad manners in the street cars and out of them.

I don't think all of the women are to blame either, but I do believe that it is a woman's business to set the standard and if she sets the right standard men will try hard to live up to it.

I'm a newspaper woman myself, and that being the case, I have been out alone at night on the street and in and out of theaters, on trains, and on steamers, sailing the seven seas, and I have yet to meet an actual rudeness from any man with education and background enough to know better.

Men act as the women they know expect them to act. I'm sorry for the poor boorish youngsters who sat down and let their teacher stand. I wonder what sort of mothers they had at home—if the mothers are at home!

Any great lumox of an overgrown school boy who will sprawl in a seat and let a tired elderly lady stand ought to have his ears boxed. But who is going to box them—tell me that?

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There's nothing new about this theme. It's as old as human nature. It will fit any life. It's the answer to What Ails You, as well as Betty Ann.

For 34 years Betty Ann has planned to be a writer. Now she's getting mad about it.

Lovely dreams they were, at first. When she was only 10, she'd lie for hours in the tangled grass under the apple trees, thinking of the Great Book she'd some day write. Deep, warm grass, spangled with flowers, buzzing with bees. And above, blue scraps of cloud flecked sky, caught in the blossoms' fragrant web.

And Betty Ann's thoughts as tangled as the warm, deep grass—as spangled with bright desire—as lazy-mazy as the little clouds afloat on the rosy foam.

Yes, of course, she'd have to have some training. Lots and lots, probably—a college course, and plenty of travel. Then, the right environment and long, peaceful hours—temple quiet—in which to write. Surely that wasn't much to ask. And when once that happened, how she'd show the world.

So she dreamed at 10, at 15, 20, 25—and so she's dreaming still!

But now, as I said before, she's getting mad. For, in spite of these years and years and YEARS of beautiful, unselfish, devoted—almost consecrated — planning, nothing has come right. Indeed, she's beginning to think that some malignant Fate has deliberately planned to make everything come wrong.

A college course? The folks had laughed at the very idea! No use telling them that the world was losing its Greatest Woman Writer of All Time, just because they selfishly refused to put another mortgage on the ranch. What did they care about writing? How could they understand the crucifixion of her sensitive soul, as she watched the thwarted years go limping by?

Why, they didn't even care enough to let her have a little peace at home! Acted just as if she was any ordinary girl, with no higher goal than getting dates with new Boy Friends. Expected her to wash dishes. Interrupted her with the silliest worries.

So that's why Betty Ann isn't the World's Greatest Writer at 40. And, according to her, it's Everybody Else's Fault. But, actually—it's only her own!

Nothing and no one on earth could have prevented Betty Ann from being a writer if she had the talent and could stand the drill. College educations are almost as rare amongst real writers as green pearls. And Uninterrupted Peace Just Isn't.

Robert Louis Stevenson wrote his serene, triumphant lines on paper marred with the dreadful scarlet of tubercular hemorrhage. Sir Walter Scott and Shakespeare composed classics with debt collectors—and naggy ladies—nipping their heels. And Kathleen Norris, loved by millions for her gaiety, charm and tender understanding, started her writing—and still keeps it up—in the midst of a million distracting domestic problems.

Yet, Betty Ann could have been what she wanted to be if she'd had the Makings and the Takings. But, like most of us fool humans, she wouldn't accept life as it came—wouldn't take "half a loaf" but DEMANDED THE WHOLE.

BUT THERE ARE NO WHOLE LOAVES FOR ANY OF US.

There is no Perfect Opportunity—no Perfect Success—no Perfect Environment—no perfect Human Relationship. Life never turns out as we want it to. And only a spoiled cry-baby expects that it will!

We must take our half loaves—or do without.

AND IF WE CAN'T BE HAPPY WITH CRUMBS, AND SUCCESSFUL ON CRUSTS, THEN WE'RE JUST OUT OF LUCK!

And if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thanks have ye? for sinners also lend to sinners, to receive as much again.—Luke, vi:34.
